A Fenian Demonstration in London—The American Flag Displayed—Everything Quiet.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—An immense demonstration in favor of amnesty to the Fenians was made to-day. Large processions formed in various parts of the city, and headed by bands of music and bearing flags and banners inscribed with significant mottoes, marched to Hyde Park. Several thousand women, wearing green favors and scarfs, walked in the procession. At Hyde Park, during the afternoon, a monster mass meeting was held, at which it is estimated 50,000 persons were present. The American flag was hoisted and was loudly cheered. Mr. BRADLAUGH and others addressed the people, and the remarks of some of the speakers were of a highly inflammatory character. Resolutions demanding amnesty for the Fenians were adopted by acclamation, after which the meeting ended and the people quietly retired from the Park. The proceedings throughout the day were orderly. Great precautions had been taken by the Government. The reserves of Police were all on duty, and the troops were assembled at their barracks, but their intervention was not required.

FRANCE.

The Demonstration of Oct. 26—Military Precautions—Intentions of the Opposition Deputies—The Strikes.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—The military is collecting in Paris in view of the threatened irregular meeting of the Corps Legislatif on the 26th inst. An Imperial manifesto is expected. The Orleanists are active. It is thought that the crisis may restore ROUHER to the Cabinet.

Yesterday the Marshals who were present in Paris had a reunion.

It is now certain that none of the Deputies will go to the Chamber on the 26th inst., as was at first contemplated by the members of the Opposition.

A dispatch from Cairo, Egypt, to-day, announces the arrival of the Empress EUGENIE in that city, where she was well received.

The strike, which originated with the merchants' clerks, is rapidly spreading among all classes of workmen.

The Military Review for the 26th Countermanded—Pere Hyacinthe and his Superior.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—It has been decided that no military review will be held on Tuesday, the 26th inst.

An imperial manifesto is expected to appear to-morrow. Many rumors prevail as to its contents, but nothing is positively known. Some journals assert the Government is making enormous military preparations to prevent any public disturbance on Tuesday next.

Pere HYACINTHE, not having returned to his convent, as ordered by his Superior, has been dispossessed of all his charges.

SPAIN.

Tranquillity Restored—Arrests—The Candidates for the Throne and the Cortes.

MADRID, Oct. 23.—The country is tranquil. The Bishop of Albania and several Protestants have been arrested at Grenada.

ALBAIDA, suspected of implication in the recent insurrection, has been arrested by the authorities and taken to Valencia for trial.

The Spanish Cabinet is divided on the subject of the candidate for the throne.

The Ecumenical Council and the Spanish Constitution.

MADRID, Oct. 24.—In the Cortes yesterday General PRIM said that if the Ecumenical Council should adopt decisions hostile in their operation to the Spanish Constitution, they would be treated by the Government as null and void.

SPANISH AFFAIRS.

Growth of the Insurrection—Latest Details in Regard to it—Cuban Matters—Republicanism in the Cortes—Revolutionary Proclamation to the Andalusians—The Patriot Salvochea.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MADRID, Monday, Oct. 11, 1869.

The Republican insurrection has now assumed most formidable proportions. It extends to the Provinces of Barcelona, Tarragona, Lerida, Gerona, Oviedo, Orense, Coruna, Logrono, Huesca, Saragossa, Salamanca, Valladolid, Valencia, Castellon, Murcia, Alicante, Cleores, Cuenca, Ciuded Real, Albacete, Zamora, Toledo, Jaen, Granada, Malaga, Cadiz and Seville. These twenty-seven Provinces are the largest and richest of the forty-nine into which Spain is divided. The accounts we receive are entirely Governmental and these only by telegraph, for the fact of the rails being cut in every direction throughout the country prevents our receiving any letters or newspapers. It was expected the mails from Catalonia, Andalusia, Valencia and Saragossa, the theatres of the principal events of the last week, would get through and arrive today, but they have not. I am, therefore, disappointed in not being able to give you details of these events to-day. In Saragossa there has been tremendous fighting, lasting eighteen hours. The Government say the troops succeeded, but some Republican friends of mine here affirm that this is not true; that the affair is not yet over, and that the insurgents have taken three pieces of artillery from the troops. At Valencia the Republic has been proclaimed. The troops there are only 700 in number, and they are waiting for reinforcements after sustaining a two days' fight. Large divisions are on the way, but are greatly impeded by the fact of the rebels having destroyed all the railway lines converging to the city. A frigate is anchored off the place, ready to join in the renewed attack, which will be made when the reinforcements reach the city, and I expect in my next to have to report to you terrible slaughter there. In Andalusia the Deputy PAUL and young SALVOCHEA continue to baffle the troops, avoiding a general engagement as long as they can. The Government report them beaten and dispersed, but that is too old a Spanish trick to be believed. In Catalonia the Deputy SUNYER, at the head of 1,000 men, is said to have been defeated at La Junquera, and to have fled across the French frontier, but this lacks confirmation. In fact, we are in such a glorious state of indefinite and uncertainty here in Madrid that I think it better to say little saving for fear of having to unsay it to-morrow. The Government talks of the insurgents as on the decline, but I think otherwise. I think otherwise. As, however, they tell us the injured rails are being restored at some of the principal points, and that we may expect the trains to get through to-day or to-morrow, I shall be able to put two and two together, by the next mail day, and give you reliable accounts. Meantime I may say we are all quiet in Madrid. It was reported three days ago that so many troops had left here for the theatres of war that the garrison was reduced to 3,000 men—a force quite insufficient to keep down the Republican sentiment in Madrid. The moment General PRIM heard of this, he ordered a grand review to show his strength. It took place on Saturday. Including infantry, cavalry, artillery, and civil guards, I estimate the numbers at from 9,000 to 10,000. The Ministerial papers put them down at 12,000, but I am sure this is an error. It is not the wish of the Republican leaders to have any outbreak here until word comes reliably of some important Republican successes in the Provinces. The Government has issued orders for the arrest of MM. CASTELAR, FIGUEROS, SORIN, GARRIDO and the whole of the Republican minority. All these men are in hiding, reminding one forcibly of the days of Queen ISABELLA. Liberty is quite crushed out for the present, and no one, not even your correspondent, is safe.

CUBA.

The Government report the receipt of "satisfactory telegrams" from CABALLERO DE RODAS, who, they say, will shortly return from Cuba, as the insurrection is "expected to be terminated ere long." Some fresh troops have embarked, but we are now in the middle of October and scarcely 8,000 men have sailed since the patriotic outburst of General SICKLES' note.

REPUBLICAN DEPUTIES.

The Cortes have appointed a committee to consider the course to be adopted with respect to the nineteen Deputies who are in the field at the head of parties. The point is a knotty one, certainly not contemplated when the Cortes commenced its labors, and not provided for in the "rules." Those Deputies who remained in Madrid and did not join the movement, retired from the Cortes on Tuesday night, but it was understood they intended to return when their bill of impeachment was ready to be presented against the Government. They can hardly do so, if, as is reported, it is the intention of the authorities to put them all under arrest.

REVOLUTIONARY PROCLAMATION.

The following is the proclamation of SALVOCHEA, the Republican leader in Andalusia. He is a native of Cadiz, where his father, a wealthy merchant, resides, and is about 28 years of age:

To the Inhabitants of Andalusia:

For the second time I give you an example in my person of the responsibilities to which the true Republican is called! For the second time I face danger to save the rights of man! For the second time, in short, I hasten to combat those who, in an evil hour, we elevated to power that they might subsequently become our tyrants! History affords no example of more iniquitous tyranny than that inflicted by these men on a noble and generous people. To arms! To arms! Republicans of Andalusia. Swear not to conquer or to die, but swear simply to conquer and you will conquer.

The banner of the Federal Republic now waves throughout the Peninsula; whole districts at the moment recognize no other symbol! Will you be the last to rush to the combat, disregarding not only your duties, but the impulses of your hearts, which point out to you the road to the salvation of the country! It is impossible! To arms, then, Republicans of Andalusia! Prove to the country what the Andalusian Provinces are capable of doing when liberty is about to succumb! Modern Spartans prefer death to shame! Let your cry be, Make way for the real Revolution! Make way for the Rights of Man! Down with the Tyrants! Viva la Republica Federal!

A fraternal embrace from your brother,

FERMIN SALVOCHEA.

ALCALA DE LOS GOSALES, Oct. 3, 1869.

THE PATRIOT SALVOCHEA.

You may remember that in one of my letters written from Seville in May last, I gave you a description of SALVOCHEA, whom I visited at that time in prison. He is one of the truest patriots and noblest hearts in Spain. He speaks English fluently, and is an intense admirer of the institutions of the United States. His passionate desire is to see the federal system introduced into Spain. Should the Republicans succeed, the Government, I have reason to believe, will be modeled strictly on the plan of ours. In this way Spain may preserve her colonies.

FRANCE.

Movements of the Emperor—The New Belgo-American Cable Controversy—The Proposed Franco-American Postal Treaty—Auber, the Composer—Father Hyacinthe.

From our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 13, 1869.

The Emperor left yesterday for Compiègne, where he will remain for some weeks unless there should be occasion for his presence here toward the 26th. So far as the opposition Deputies are concerned all idea of a demonstration on that day seems to be abandoned. What the working classes may do is, however, another question. It may be that the chiefs of the Democracy have not sufficient influence over them to prevent them turning out en masse, but for this the Government is making ample preparations. Cannon is being sent to all the barracks, the Police have received revolvers with detailed instructions how to act under given circumstances, three cavalry regiments which had been stationed in Paris for some time, and which are well acquainted with the city, have been recalled from the Provinces, and the cavalry of Versailles are to be installed in the Champs Elysées early on the morning of the expected demonstration.

These precautions, it is to be hoped, will be rendered useless by the speedy reunion of the Deputies of the Opposition, who are now nearly all in the city, and who will at once put forward a manifesto declaring their programme and calling upon the people to abstain from appearing on the streets. At a meeting held yesterday on the Faubourg St. Antoine, M. JULES FERRY made a speech to this effect, and all the Democratic journals which were most earnest in advocating the demonstration have backed out of it. The conflict which took place the other day at Belleville, between the people and the Police, seems to have had a wholesome influence in deciding the lingering hesitations of the most valiant of the would-be heroes of the day. If there is an outbreak, it will be caused by the same influences as those which provoked the riots in June last. I do not think, however, that the Police will venture to play that game a second time, or that, if they do, they will find the people disposed to fall into the trap.

A dispatch was received at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, yesterday, announcing that as the accounts of the Emperor's health continued so good, it was the Empress' intention to proceed to Jerusalem. I am afraid that her pilgrimage will not exercise a beneficial influence upon her political ideas, which, so far as the Church is concerned, are reactionary enough.

THE CABLE CONTROVERSY.

I sent you last week the correspondence which has recently been exchanged between the Minister of the Interior and some prominent American citizens here, in regard to an authorization demanded by the latter to land an American cable on the shores of France, in return for the similar permission accorded by our Government to the company of which MM. ERLANGER and REUTER are the representatives. I now forward you the memorial which has been addressed by the gentlemen in question to the Secretary of State at Washington, and which, as it had not been dispatched when I sent you the other letter, I was not in a position to transmit to you:

To Hon. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State, &c., &c.:

SIR: We, the undersigned, submit to you a copy of an application to the Government of France for permission to land a cable on the shores of France; also a copy of the reply of the Minister of the Interior, refusing to give the permission asked for, on the ground that the French Government has given Messrs. ERLANGER & REUTER the exclusive privilege for twenty years of direct telegraphic communication between France and the United States. This refusal is so opposite to your act in allowing the French cable to be landed on the shores of the United States, that we deem it proper to lose no time in laying this matter before you. We would remind you that Messrs. ERLANGER and REUTER were the most bitter enemies of the United States during the late rebellion, the former by aiding the rebels in raising money, and the latter in spreading false news, to the injury of the United States; and certainly those gentlemen can have no claims upon the Government of the United States for indulgence. We respectfully ask that all operations and working of the French cable may be suspended until citizens of the United States shall meet with the same consideration and reciprocity in France that citizens of France receive in the United States.

Your obedient servants, &c.,

(Here follow the signatures.)

I do not know what influences may be brought to bear with the State Department in Washington to support this memorial. It is certain that Messrs. ERLANGER and REUTER will stop at nothing to prevent action being taken upon it. Mr. FISH will no doubt do his duty, and lay the whole matter before Congress, and it is there that their operations are most to be feared. I understand that in view of the importance of the interests involved, orders have been sent out to the agents of the Company in America to spare no expense to defeat the prayer of the memorial. When, therefore, the matter comes up for discussion, you may expect a strong lobby upon it. The question, however, is so clear, and the principle of reciprocity is so fully provided for in the authorization accorded to the Company by our State Department, that I do not see how it is possible to make out a case for declining to accede to the request of the memorialists.

THE NEW BELGO-AMERICAN CABLE.

The arrangements between the Belgian Government and an American company for laying a cable from Ostend to some point between Maine and Georgia are in progress, and are now nearly completed. The line is a very important one in an international point of view, as it will be exempt from the risks of interruption to which the English and French lines will be exposed in time of war. The conditions of the concessions, as proposed by the company and accepted by the Belgian Government, are as follows: The line is not to touch on any foreign territory between the two coasts, and is to be in working order by the 1st of September, 1871. The privilege is exclusive and is to cover the period of twenty years. Messages are to be charged for at the rate of ten cents a word, and no message amounting to less than a dollar will be transmitted. The Belgian Government is to exercise such a supervision and control over the line as will prevent messages being divulged, and the same powers are offered to the United States at the other side. This makes it a Government cable—a postal extension in fact—without cost to either Government. Both Governments are to have the free use of the line for thirty minutes each every twenty-four hours. During the remaining time Government dispatches are to be treated the same as general messages, with a right of precedence, however. Neither Government is to use the cable longer than an hour at any one time in the event of the other desiring to send a dispatch. The object of this provision is to prevent either from monopolizing the line during a crisis at which it might be an object for one Government to prevent another sending messages. Each of the Governments is to have its own confidential operator to forward its messages, and the other operators are to retire and to leave him in possession of the line when he is at work. Both these operators are to be paid by the Company.

You will see by these provisions that every precaution has been taken to guard against interference with the honest and impartial working of the line. These safeguards were proposed by the Company itself, in view of the special interests which they desire to create. The arrangements are very far advanced, and it is expected that the concession will be formally completed in the course of a week or two.

PROPOSED FRANCO-AMERICAN POSTAL TREATY.

I have reason to believe that the distinguished Senator (RAMSEY) who has been sent to Paris to try and effect an amelioration in the postal arrangements between the United States and France, will be unable to comply with the extravagant demands of the French Post Office authorities, and that consequently no postal convention will be agreed to between the two Governments. Our citizens at the other side will therefore reap the advantage of sending letters to France at cheaper rates than under the present treaty, which expires on the 1st of January next. In this, as in many other things, the French Government takes a short-sighted view of its own interests. Uniformity of rates and weight, as proposed by our Commissioner, would enable it to effect a large retrenchment in its postal expenditure, without in any way diminishing its revenue. It is so afraid of experimenting with its resources at the present critical moment, however, that it cannot be brought to take our view of the matter. Under the new Parliamentary régime, it is not likely that so important a question can fail to be brought up for discussion, and therefore we may regard its favorable solution as merely adjourned. Senator RAMSEY leaves Paris next week.

MUSICAL GOSSIP.

The venerable composer AUBER is busily at work on a new opera which will be produced in the course of the present Winter. His "Premier Jour de Bonheur" continues to attract as largely as ever at the Opera Comique. The great maestro lives in his own house in the Rue St. Georges, the same which he has occupied for more than a quarter of a century. He is a connoisseur of pictures, and his residence contains many treasures in the fine art line, a good many of them presents from eminent painters and sculptors. He was very much attached to ROSSINI, and a beautiful bust of him in marble occupies a prominent place in his salon. Here in his bachelor home, for AUBER lives en garçon, I had recently the pleasure to dine with him. Among the guests were Mlle. POINSOT, who, you will remember, once formed part of MABILTEER's company in New-York; Mlle. DAMOREAU, daughter of Mme. CINTI DAMOREAU, and herself a prima donna, and Mlle. LOUISE DURAND, the American soprano, who has recently arrived here. M. AUBER seemed to take great interest in our young countrywoman, and his counsels will be of inestimable value to her. There is some talk of an offer having already been made her from St. Petersburg. The work upon which the venerable composer is engaged, is, he says, to be his last. An early riser and untiring worker, it is difficult to believe that this lively and energetic veteran is close upon 86. The inscription under his bust at the new Opera House excludes, however, all doubt on the subject, for it states that he was born in 1782. M. AUBER is rather below the average height, and he walks wonderfully erect for a man of his great age. In fact, to see him in a salon playing the beau and paying attention to his lady guests, he might well be taken for a man of 60. It is impossible to approach him without being fascinated by the sweetness and amiability of his manners. He will leave many regrets behind him when he passes away besides those due to his artistic eminence.

FERE HYACINTHE.

When I wrote to you some ten days back an account of a visit which I had paid to the celebrated Carmelite preacher Father HYACINTHE, I believe I mentioned that he had expressed a strong desire to visit the United States. When he uttered the wish he had not the remotest idea that he would so soon undertake the journey. He is nevertheless now on his way across the Atlantic, and before this reaches you will, perhaps, have reached New-York. Various motives are assigned for this sudden determination on his part, but I believe the true one is his desire to avoid all further controversy until after the meeting of the Ecumenical Council.

ENGLAND.

The Irish Land Question—Social Science—Women's Progress—Vices of Liverpool—Storm and Misery—Secularism—Hospital Reform.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday, Oct. 9.

The Irish Land question has to be touched with great caution in England. Lord LITCHFIELD and Sir E. BULLER tried to say something about it at an agricultural dinner a few days ago in Staffordshire, but the noise and confusion were so great that each of them—a Lord, and then a Baronet—were silenced and obliged to sit down. The assembled landlords would not hear of it. In Ireland the great difficulty is to moderate the demands of the people and keep them down to something like what Parliament will be able to grant them. How adroitly this is done, by appeals to Irish generosity, you may see in the following report of a speech of the Very Rev. Dr. MAURE, at Maryborough. He said:

"You are prepared, are you not, to give to the landlords the sixty or seventy millions which your sweat and toil and the toils of your fathers have added to the land. Yes, let them have it with the rest of the spoil and booty. You are prepared also—I presume you are—to forget much of the past history of your country—all the affliction that confiscations, spoils and religious wars have entailed upon you. Of course there is not a man in this meeting who does not feel and know that every inch of this soil belonged to his fathers. But let that pass—let it be forgotten for ever. You are a generous race and can forgive. But are you prepared, let me ask you, or will you permit any human power to extermonate you, to expel you from the land which God and nature gave for your support—which is the first right of property, and which no human law, or human power, or conquest, or plunder, or sale can vanquish so long as you pay your rents and fulfill your duties to society. [Cheers.] Let me understand you then, a fixity of tenure at fair rents—is not this what you want? ['Yes, certainly.'] Will you be satisfied with anything less? ['No, no,' and cheers.] Would a twenty-one or thirty-one years' lease, leaving the landlord to determine what rent he pleased, satisfy you? ['No, no, we will not.'] Would a compensation bill for tenant improvement—a sort of vague, indefinite, impracticable measure, never to be applied, such as those that have been on the tapis for the last thirty years—a sort of placeat for your voluntary banishment and exile—would that cure your misfortunes? [Cheers, and 'No, no.'] Then in the common opinion of this meeting, I ask, will any remedial measure, short of fixity of tenure and fair rents, settle this question, or put an end to the calamities of the present land tenure of Ireland? ['No, no, never,' and tremendous cheering.']

Under the heading of "GLADSTONE and his Victims," the Irishman says:

"This man, who is held up to the people by the so-called National and Liberal newspapers of Ireland as a benefactor, is inflicting upon men of stainless honor, men of refined and cultivated minds, such tortures of mind and body as were never before inflicted upon human beings in any part of the civilized world. This is no exaggeration. It has been proved beyond the possibility of doubt. The horrible doings in those 'prison pens,' which we were the first to drag to the light, are a disgrace to humanity. Not Ireland alone, but the whole world should cry out against them. The treatment of the Italian patriots in the dungeons of Austria was, as Mr. BUTT remarked, 'luxury when compared with the treatment of our patriots.' With this fact before their eyes, why will agitators insult the people with praises of the man who has outdone the most despotic tyrant in severity to political prisoners? These agitators will say that GLADSTONE is not to blame, but we tell the agitators that GLADSTONE, and GLADSTONE alone, is to blame. We tell them, in the words of Mr. BUTT, that 'on him and on his soul and conscience the responsibility rests.' He will not even allow an inquiry into the treatment of his victims. In vain have we, over and over again, demanded this inquiry. Our demands were met with contemptible prevarication, or open and barefaced lying. We ask those eulogists of Mr. GLADSTONE will they persevere in the course they are pursuing in the face of such a state of things—in the face of this cowardly and disgraceful conduct on the part of their hero?"

It recommends that as an expression of Irish feeling—pardon the bull—the English Prince now visiting Ireland shall be everywhere greeted with profound silence. The Rock exults in the fact that while Cardinal CULLEN, on his late visit to Wexford was welcomed like a King—the real King of Ireland, it was very difficult to get up a cheer for the Lord-Lieutenant.

The economy of the Gladstone Government is not only a good subject for the satirical papers, but I find it a subject of conversation among the people. They think it has begun at the wrong end of the scale. Three or four dockyards are closed, and thousands of workingmen are thrown out of employment and compelled to emigrate. "Why didn't they begin by cutting down their own salaries," asked the newsman of whom I buy my papers, "beginning with the Queen and Princes, and all the idle hangers-on of the Court? Why don't they cut down the enormous retiring pensions of Lord Chancellors and the whole list of men already rich, fattened on the taxes—taking toll of every man's beer and tobacco? Bishops enriching all their relations and hoarding up millions—clergymen with ten thousand a year—and people starving?" A lot of army surgeons have been put on half pay, and one has just committed suicide in consequence; but I do not see that there has been any reduction to the emoluments of GEORGE, Duke of Cambridge.

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE, a rather solid than brilliant statesman, has opened this years' session of the Social Science Congress at Bristol with an address which goes over too much ground, and treats questions too impartially from every point of view, to be of much interest. At the close, however, he "perorates" in a general glorification of England, which called forth "loud and protracted cheering." He said:

"The proud position of England is due, not to the accident of circumstances, but to the character of her people. If she derives advantage from her mineral wealth it is because her sons have known how to turn it to account; if she is the home of manufacturing industry it is because the ingenuity and the perseverance of her sons have made her so; if she holds the empire of the seas it is because her sons have won it for her. She enjoys, it is true, the blessings of a noble Constitution; but it is a Constitution of which the merit lies less in the framework than in the spirit by which it is animated. It has, indeed, undergone many changes; men say it has been destroyed over and over again; none would venture to predict through how many more of such destructions it is destined to pass. But the spirit of her people remains unbroken; and in that unbroken spirit there still lives the greatness of England. Legislate as you will, organize, educate, develop the advantages of cooperation, economise labor, show how skill may be made to do the work of strength; but amid all your improvements bear one caution steadily in mind—beware of destroying or of enervating the individual energies of Englishmen."

This is very fine, but when the Congress got at its work in sections, it was noticed that the energies of individual energies was going on in various directions, by dirt and foul air, and poisoned water, and unwholesome food, intoxicating drinks, toil, care, and the depressing influences that shorten life. But these social philosophers work—at least they talk. There is a progress of sanitary reform. The Englishman is becoming his brother's keeper. Love of the neighbor, so long indulged in as a religious sentiment, is becoming practical. I think the time is not distant when the death-rate will be reduced; when there will be a large increase of honest dealing; when the freedom of trade will not mean liberty to poison; when one can walk through even such a vast aggregation of humanity as London without serious risk of inhaling pestilence.

WOMEN'S PROGRESS.

Every year the women of England take a more active part in these meetings. Dr. ELIZABETH BLACKWELL addressed the ladies of the Congress on medical education, and gave an interesting narrative of her own experience as medical student and physician. She thinks the opposition to women as physicians was as great in America as in England a few years ago, and she said that she had been received here by "her own profession with great cordiality." Miss GARRETT and two other ladies have this season entered the Medical College of Edinburgh, which is one of the strongholds. On the whole English women—and Miss BLACKWELL is English—seem to run in advance of Americans in the quiet and resolute assertion of their rights. There are several thousand female voters in English towns—English women, as I mentioned a few weeks since, sometimes take the chair at public meetings and dinners and make speeches; it is common for them to officiate in public capacities, such as the inauguration of philanthropic institutions; they have for a long time been very active in political canvasses; they take a leading part in business far more than in America. A woman hands you your letters or sends a telegraphic message for you oftener than a man—three times in four she serves you with beer or spirits; a neatly dressed girl brings round the morning papers; and yesterday I saw a brawny-armed woman rowing a barge in the Liverpool docks. In the large drapery establishments—dry goods stores—the wife of the proprietor is as busy as he is, and three salesmen out of four are young women. A female cashier is more common than a male one; perhaps they are considered safer. I have no recollection of seeing a case of a female defaulter. It is evident that if women are clever enough to fill places of trust, there is much less risk than with men. No private detectives are required to follow them about after business hours, see where they go, and how much money they are spending.

VICES OF LIVERPOOL.

Among the peculiarities of Liverpool is its addiction to stimulants. Its vices are drunkenness, violence and licentiousness. There is less dishonesty, theft, burglary, &c., than in Manchester or Birmingham. In spite of all the efforts of temperance men, and of the Magistrates under the new law for the regulation of beerhouses, drunkenness increases. Last Saturday and Sunday, the two days when most people are in funds and consequently in liquor, of 294 persons arrested by the Police, 245 were drunk. Only 97 had any money in their possession—and their total wealth was but £23. All the rest had stuck to the bar as long as they had a copper, and then went forth to fall into the hands of the Police. Among the drunkards brought before one Magistrate were ELIZABETH WILLIAMS, who had been before the Court thirty-one times; WINIFRED LLOYD, thirty-two times; EMILY WARDEN, twenty-seven times; MATILDA BROOKS, twenty-six times; ANN STUART, forty-six times; and ISABELLA REED, eighty-seven times. Under the new law each gets three months instead of seven days' imprisonment. This will save trouble, but three years would be still better.

MISERY.

The great storm which covered the shores of England with wrecks made sad work with the hop-pickers. Thousands of the most wretched of the poor of London get their outing and earn a little money in the hop harvest in Kent. They sleep in out-houses, on the lee side of cornricks, and along the hedges—gipsies without gipsy hardiness or comforts. Men, women and children bivouac in groups over the whole country, and in fine weather have good times; but think of an equinoctial gale and heavy rains. On Saturday and Sunday thousands, ragged and famished, poured into London in the most miserable plight, filling the streets and overwhelming the Poor House authorities. The Police were occupied for hours in finding them food and shelter. Are these the people, I wonder, Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE is so anxious about—so afraid that something will be done to enervate their individual energies?

SECULARISM.

Mr. BRADLAUGH, the Secularist Archbishop, as some wit has styled him, has inaugurated a new Secularist hall in Birmingham with an address, in which he made some remarks on the Queen, the Prince of WALES, and the Duke of EDINBURGH, which the Birmingham Post refuses to publish. They must, therefore, have been very treasonable, or very wicked; and people are naturally anxious to know what they could have been. The Byron scandal has had its day—and people, fond of such things, are curious to see what new blasphemy has been brought forth by Mr. BRADLAUGH. I say blasphemy, because majesty is sacred—sacred, at all events, as the Rock says the Pope is anti-Christ—ex-officio; and the heir apparent has so much of sanctity in prospective, that no one but a rank secularist would say anything against him. Indeed, the maxim, "the King can do no wrong," might as well be extended to the whole royal family.

HOSPITAL REFORM.

Mr. MAYO, a young surgeon, who had the advantage of an appointment as a staff surgeon in the United States army during the war, and served in General SHERMAN's army during the great march, was lately a surgeon at the principal hospital in London—St. Bartholomew's. Being young and enthusiastic, and having also seen some portions of the world beyond these small islands, he is a reformer, and has been trying to reform St. Bartholomew's. Other means having failed, he has appealed to the public in a pamphlet, in which he states the fact that in this great and rich institution the house physicians are obliged to see cases old and new, inquire into symptoms, determine treatment, &c., at the rate of 100 patients an hour, or 40 seconds to each patient. Even when the patients are warned to put out their tongues in advance, or can have their pulses felt by telegraph, this is rather too rapid a mode of procedure—hard on clinical students, hard on the doctors, and possibly a little hard on the patients. The trouble is, I presume, the same that exists so widely—the lack of an organizing faculty. Here are a plenty of money, plenty of physicians, plenty of patients, but no power of bringing them all together in the proper proportions.

But great hospitals are now thought by some of the most eminent men in the medical profession to be a mistake—altogether. Sir JAMES SIMPSON, defending this opinion, cites some very startling statistics. In isolated rooms in country practice the loss of life after amputations is 11 per cent.; in hospitals with 20 to 100 beds it is 18 per cent.; from 200 to 300 beds, 30 per cent.; from 300 to 400 beds, 41 per cent.; in the large Paris hospitals, 62 per cent. But another surgeon holds that all this terrible surplus of mortality may be prevented by antiseptic treatment and thorough ventilation. The mortality in lying-in hospitals, as compared with that in private practice, even under very hard conditions, is notorious. In view of such facts, we cannot be far wrong in coming to the conclusion that all medical and surgical science and practice need as much reforming as other departments of what is called social science. THE SECOND EMPIRE.

A French Statesman on the Present Crisis—Views of M. Garnier-Pages.

Some of his constituents having made an attempt to draw from him a statement of his views, M. GARNIER-PAGES has published the following reply: "I will answer you in all sincerity, without blaming any one who differs from me, and claiming for myself the same indulgence. In my eyes, the crisis does not spring from a date more or less contested, nor from a point more or less disputable in a Constitution that no longer exists. The cause of this crisis is to be traced to a principle of more importance than any of these questions, which, I think, are only relative. The Government, as I have already said, has undertaken to make a Constitution for the nation without the nation. It has convoked the delegates of the Executive when it ought to have summoned the representatives of the people. It has thought fit to make a grant, when it had only to accept what was done by others. It has performed an act of personal and absolute government at the very moment when it declared that it meant to renounce that power. This complete absence of logic, this oblivion of all justice, this contempt of right, immediately produced an evocation of the past, a general uneasiness, a sentiment of wounded dignity, an upheaving of wrath. Men compared what they had lost with what had been restored to them, and France humiliated, wincing, as she still does, at the deception. But should the explosion of these demands for the recovery of lost liberties take place under the circumstances which seem to have been prepared by the Government? When the country is about to reap the fruits of its numerous efforts, is it to miss the mark through too much haste? Or will it, on the contrary, strong in its right, firm in its projects of deliverance, wait for its own day and hour to give evidence of its sovereignty? Yes—that day and that hour will come before long; your representatives, who have long since prepared the coming, will find means to hasten the supreme moment of enfranchisement. But do not weaken them beforehand by unjust propositions or ill-founded distrusts, for they have need of your powerful cooperation and of your energy for this immense task. I am accomplishing at this moment what I consider to be a great duty; I am finishing the History of the Revolution of 1848, so glorious, so calumniated, so fertile in instruction, furnishing us with so many proofs that democracy has always been ruined by falling into the snares of its enemies. But the moment that you and my honorable colleagues of the left, in the name of another duty, shall consider my presence in Paris indispensable, I shall respond to the appeal. In the meantime I rejoice in my inmost soul at this vigorous outbreak of public opinion. My experience and my Republican sentiments perceive in it the evident symptoms of a better fate."

TRAGEDY AT SEA.

Fresh Horrors of the Coolie Trade—Mutiny, Murder and Suicide.

The St. Helena Guardian of the 2d ult. relates a sad story, perhaps the saddest that has ever been recorded in connection with the traffic in human flesh. The French bark Tamaris, Captain RANNIE, left Macao on the 6th of February, 1869, with three hundred emigrants, a Chinese doctor and a Portuguese interpreter, besides eighteen in crew. According to the account of those of the seamen who are still on board the Tamaris, everything passed on pleasantly until within about 270 miles of the Isle of Java; a revolt broke out among the free emigrants, who seemed to have got the best of it, the crew taking to the boats, deserting the ship, and leaving their unfortunate Captain, who either did not wish or was not able to abandon his ship, a ready prey to these enraged semi-savages. What happened to this unfortunate Captain we cannot learn for certain; according to the interpreter on board the Tamaris, he was cut up and thrown overboard. Thirty days these savages remained in possession of the ship, when they were captured by a Dutch man-of-war, which had been sent in pursuit. The Dutch found a Chinese installed in the late Captain's quarters, but could not discover the slightest trace of M. RANNIE. They placed him and the other leaders of the revolt into irons, and took the ship to Padang. At Padang the remains of the former crew, who had landed in Java, here rejoined their ship. A new Captain and chief officer were appointed, and the ship started in pursuit of a new destination on the 15th of June. By this date the number of coolies had been reduced, by arms and disease, to 245. Out of this number scores jumped overboard and committed suicide when they found that they were to proceed on their voyage. Scores of others have died of what a cockle ship Captain phlegmatically would call, the effects of opium. There now remain on board the Tamaris seventy-five emigrants alive. Much as we must abhor the murder and wholesale loss of lives on board this ship, we would almost hail the occurrence as a blessing to humanity, were those who are now engaged in this horrid trade to take a lesson from this story and abandon it forever. If the charterers of this ship are not inclined to profit by the moral lesson of the story of its voyage, they will most probably have to learn by the pecuniary one it teaches them.

NEWS NOTES.

The Dublin Express is glad to learn that the wish entertained by many of the Irish subjects of the Queen that her Majesty should visit this country next year, is likely to be gratified. It understands that arrangements are in progress at the Viceregal Lodge, with a view to a visit from her Majesty in June next.

The Rappel, of Oct. 14, publishes a letter from VICTOR HUGO, in which he discourages the idea of a manifestation taking place on the 26th inst., and advises the Deputies of the Left not to declare themselves absolved from their oaths. The letter says: "On the day when I counsel insurrection I will be with you. This time I do not counsel it."

Mr. WOODWARD, Librarian in ordinary to the Queen at Windsor Castle, died on Oct. 12. Mr. WOODWARD was a man of considerable literary and artistic culture. He wrote a history of Wales and a history of America, and a local history of Hampshire, was editor of the Fine Arts Quarterly Review, and was lately engaged on a life of "Leonardo da Vinci." According to the Men of the Time, he was born at Norwich in 1816, and graduated at London University.

Accounts from Tripoli to the 30th of September have been received at Valetta, announcing that the Turkish Government have succeeded in capturing the assassins of the late Mlle. TINNE, and recovering the young negress JASMINA and some of the stolen property. The Touareg Chief IKENOUKENE disclaims any connection with the escort which betrayed the unfortunate lady, and has assisted in bringing the murderers to justice. He has placed the young negress, and the recovered effects, under the protection of the Chief, who was to have escorted Mlle. TINNE, and they will be shortly sent on from Ghat to Mourzouk and Tripoli, where the caravan and servants are expected to arrive in the first week of November.

On the night of Oct. 10 the Church of St. Edmund the King and Martyr and St. Nicholas Acons, Lombard-street, in London, was crowded to excess on the occasion of the harvest thanksgiving, at which it had been widely announced that Rev. STEPHEN E. GLADSTONE, the son of the Prime Minister, and the curate of St. Mary the Less, Lambeth, would deliver a discourse. Every available spot was filled long before the hour announced for the commencement of the service. At the commencement of the service, a procession, headed by the rector and Rev. S. GLADSTONE, emerged from the vestry, and took their seats in the choir. The service, which was choral, was then proceeded with, and at its conclusion Mr. GLADSTONE, who wore the Oxford hood, preached, selecting his text from the 15th chapter of the 1st Epistle to the Corinthians.

The London Morning Star is dead. Its last number, which was printed under date of Oct. 13, contained a farewell article, a portion of which ran thus: "It is nearly fourteen years since the Star was first published. Its objects were twofold; one of them was the advocacy and propagation of political principles which were then counted extreme in their Liberalism; the other was to establish the feasibility of providing journalism of the best sort under what were then the untried conditions of a penny newspaper. * * * With reference to the former object, it is not too much to say that the political ideas which the Star was founded to spread, and which were fourteen years ago thought so extreme, are now accepted and organ articles of the Liberal creed; and causes which seemed forlorn and men who seemed impossible have achieved a recognized triumph." The "good will" of the journal has been transferred to the Daily News.

WHISKY.

The Trade of Louisville—How Much of the Pure Article it Exports.

From the Louisville Courier, Oct. 23.

It is natural that a large percentage of the whisky produced in the State should concentrate here to be exported to other markets. The firms engaged in the business now number between sixty and seventy, all of whom are doing an active business. The State of Kentucky is divided into nine revenue districts, but the production of whisky is confined principally to five districts, and from these Louisville derives her supplies. Our estimates of receipts are given for the past twelve months, and are believed to be approximately correct. These estimates serve to indicate what is being done in one of the leading branches of trade:

Fifth District	54,000
Fourth District	15,000
Sixth District	7,000
Second District	2,500

TRIALS OF CITY LIFE

Outrages to Ladies in Street Cars—Answer to the "Testimony of a Young Lady."

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your issue of to-day contains an article upon "Insults to Ladies in Street Cars," to which I feel constrained to reply, as I think the writer does great injustice to that most essential part of the community, the man, masculine. Any one who read that piece must have thought the time had already come in this country when it would no longer be safe for any lady to be in the streets without a male protector. But I am afraid that the importance of the ladies is a little overestimated when it is said that no girl can put "her hand to her hat without having every man's eye on her." Either "A Young Lady" must be uncommonly beautiful, or else she has yielded a trifle to the prevailing habit of exaggeration; for I travel much in a stage and I have not ever seen what is described. On the contrary, I have even seen ladies change their position without attracting the slightest attention, singular as it may seem! Some women in a stage will spread their skirts so as to occupy twice as much room as necessary, and make no motion of contraction when passengers enter. Is it any wonder, then, that gentlemen will sit down on the ladies' skirts, when they do not intend to move them? For my part, I think a man has just as much right to a seat as the opposite sex, and he is a weak brained individual who will not stand up, or rather sit down, for his rights, when they are being opposed in that manner. It is all very well to talk about gentlemen putting their dirty boots against the dresses, but, in the words of a celebrated author, "if my memory serves me right, and I think she does," I have a faint recollection of the way in which ladies bounce into a stage, on a rainy day, with bedraggled and bedrabbled garments, scattering mud and filth, not only on one, but on all around. Then the skirts, like the poetic "bounds of war," are let loose, and away they fly, on the, perhaps, new trousers of the gentlemen next to her. There they rest until an angry movement is made, and then, with the aid of a muttered imprecation, the offending matter is withdrawn.

But one thing that "Young Lady" mentions ought certainly to be stopped, and that is the disposition of amorous young or old men to put their hands behind a lady's back in a stage. Certainly an insult like that is one which ought to merit a severe punishment, but I am inclined to believe that such things are, rare in New-York, where so many who call themselves gentlemen are continually traveling up and down town. I really see that such things might be plentiful in certain sections of the City, but in Broadway, very seldom do we hear even of such instances. On the whole, I think the men have about as much to complain of as the ladies, and the best way for the latter to do would be to set a good example, and the man would be sure to follow, as they have done ever since Eve eat the apple and Adam tempered. Another Letter of Many Complaining of the Outrages.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The article in your issue of yesterday headed "Outrages on Ladies in Cars and Stages" is the right thing in the right place. These outrages should be met with a strong hand and effectually crushed, and these cowardly semi-genteel villains made to understand that ladies must be respected, in the streets or in public conveyances. Your remedy is the only true one. Can not you, with your widespread influence, follow this matter up in your valuable journal, and keep it before the people until the desired end is accomplished? "The Despots of Daily Life"—A Defence of the Butcher, the Baker, the Clerk and the Domestic.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your article under caption of "The Despots in Daily Life," you give a sad picture of the trials they have to undergo in upper tendom, as I suppose it to be, who are housekeepers. The dry-goods clerks are unaccommodating and supercilious; the butcher will not sell you the joint you wish, but you are obliged to buy more than you want to obtain it; the baker is stated to be equally intolerant and exacting, and the milkman will not sell less than five dollars' worth of tickets. Now, I have been a housekeeper forty years, with a family, without experiencing any of the inconveniences you deplore. Competition in all business is so great, especially in dry goods, that you are not obliged to go to STEWART'S, LORD & TAYLOR'S, or the ARNOLDS', though they are there civil and obliging, as there is a wide range to select from, where a disposition to please is adopted as the true policy. My butcher will cut any portion to suit, for at the prices charged he can well afford to do so, and I buy for cash and don't give notes at six months, as in upper tendom, and pay extra for bad debts. Bread we generally make at home, and as for milk we buy seventeen tickets for 25. (Winter price,) of the best of milk, which is the safest way, though our respectable vender will set down in a book, if we wish it, and pay at the end of the month. He is just at the breakfast hour and is a gentleman in his conduct and appearance.

Another experience: For the last twenty years I have changed my domestics but once—one of them, Biddy my cook, now in her twelfth year of service, is kind and obliging—not a threat of leaving has ever occurred, for there has been no cause of derangement or misunderstanding. She has saved and accumulated at least $1,000 in the savings bank since living with me.

Now I will tell you my political course. I will give any $500 to who can prove that I have omitted voting more than twice during a period exceeding thirty years, (then from absence or some inferior election,) first for HENRY CLAY, and since invariably with the Republican Party. It is disgraceful, it is criminal for any to hold back and be indifferent, when their brethren are exerting all their efforts in putting in power what is considered the good of our common country.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Oct. 23, 1869.

Measner, the Wife-Murderer, Condemned to Death.

From the Rochester Union, Oct. 22.

JOSEPH MESSNER, convicted some time since of the murder of his wife, was taken into the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday afternoon and received his sentence to be executed. The prisoner looked remarkably well, and it was the remark of the attendants at Court that he had improved in appearance since his trial. He was not in the least agitated, and in appearance was any little concerned as any one in the large audience assembled to hear his sentence.

Judge JOHNSON addressed the prisoner as follows:

MESSNER, you were convicted, at a former Court, of murder, and sentenced to execution. The Court suspended the execution to review the trial. That review has taken place, and no error has been found. The case is, therefore, sent back to this Court to fix the date when the sentence of the former Court shall be executed. The Court has, therefore, fixed on Friday, the 10th day of December next, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M., as the time for the execution of this sentence, when you will be executed by hanging as prescribed in the former sentence. An order is now delivered to the Sheriff to carry this sentence into effect at the time stated. It only remains for the Court to admonish you to make immediate preparation for the fate which awaits you.

MESSNER made no remarks and manifested no emotion. He was immediately removed to the jail.

The execution of MESSNER may now be considered as certain to take place on the 10th of December, unless he shall previously be removed by death. Every legal means for relief has been sought in vain. The Governor has positively refused to interfere with the sentence, and all hope for the unfortunate and guilty man is gone.

Abrupt Close of a Circus Season.

From the Cincinnati Gazette, Oct. 22.

At 11 o'clock A. M. of Thursday, the Sheriff of Hamilton County served a writ of attachment upon the proprietors of Thayer's circus, and seized the whole property. The writ was issued at the suit of OLEY & REILLY, of New-York, who had a claim against them for printing, amounting in all to $2,000. Deputy Sheriff STRICKLAND served the writ, and made arrangements to hold the usual evening performance. The audience was large, but not commensurate, the greater portion being those of the new proprietors, who flattered and patronizing his show without incurring any expenses. The receipts amounted to $125.

Yesterday the Sheriff proceeded to take charge of the animals and other property. The baby lions were comfortably housed at JOHN ROBINSON'S, on College-street. The other four-footed stock, including the animals was continued as the property of the proprietors. The wagons and other property were stored, and a force of watchmen employed to take care of all. So, in an unexpectedly sudden manner, Thayer & Co.'s Circus and Menagerie is closed to Winter quarters.

Following the first suit came eight others for employes. FRANKLIN J. HOWES brings suit for $750, for five weeks' services in advance as business agent, and for the use of his horses, which, with which he was to receive $25 per week; for all which he was to receive $25 per week; OMAR APPOT, the clown, sues for $225, balance on account for services at $70 a week; FREDERICK A. DUBOIS sues for $600, as a balance due on $1,500 for services as advertising agent from April till October; JOSEPH H. NEAL, gymnastic performer, sues for a balance of $450, at $25 per week; JOSEPH BURDEAUX, also a gymnastic performer at the same pay, sues for a balance of $200; CHAS. H. LOWRY, equestrian, at same pay, sues for a balance of $200; and JAMES BLAKELY sues for $500, on a judgment recovered elsewhere. Attachments issued in all these cases. We learn, also, that proceedings will be instituted to dissolve the partnership, and the appointment of a receiver to sell the whole property.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Its Suggested Removal—Letter from General Sherman.

From the St. Louis Republican.

The following letter, though written to us privately, seems of sufficient public interest to justify the use we here make of it:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13, 1869.

Colonel George Knapp, St. Louis:

DEAR SIR: I see some of my friends are concerned at what I am reported to have said at a supper party here about the removal of the capital. I did not know that the matter was reported at all, nor do I know what words were attributed to me. I did say that I did not believe the capital would be removed in our day, and that the public buildings here could not be torn down and retreated elsewhere, &c. As to St. Louis, I remember well to have said I preferred a residence in St. Louis to one in Washington; because it was a city full of life, commerce and manufactures, instead of a mere place of office centre.

Of course, my opinion on this agitated question of removal is no better than yours, or of any other private individual; but if you want to know what I think of it, I am willing to say that, in my judgment, the capital of the United States, if removed to the Valley of the Mississippi within the next twenty years, will not go to St. Louis, Cincinnati or Chicago, because neither of these cities would or should surrender the exclusive jurisdiction necessary for the National Capital. To-day neither you nor any other citizen of St. Louis would consent, nor would the State of Missouri consent, to give up St. Louis County to the absolute jurisdiction of Congress. You might agree to have the capital at Carondelet, or on the Jefferson Barracks tract below the Des Peres; but that is not St. Louis, and it would necessitate the building not only of the vast fire-proof buildings for the Government offices, but the houses, hotels, stores, &c., for the persons connected with the public service.

In my opinion, if the capital is changed from Washington to the West, a new place will be chosen on the Mississippi River several hundred miles above St. Louis, and the parties to be immediately benefited are willing to make use of your St. Louis influences to get the idea started. I have interests in St. Louis, and if allowed to vote on this question, I would vote against surrendering St. Louis City and County with its vast commercial and manufacturing interests to the exclusive jurisdiction of a Congress that would make these interests subordinate to the mere political interest of a Federal Capital. Nor would any National Congress make the capital where it had not exclusive and absolute jurisdiction for its own protection and that of the employes of the Government. Therefore, if the capital be moved at all, it must go to a place willing to surrender its former character and become a second Washington City. Yours

W. T. SHERMAN.

General Belknap, the New Secretary of War.

General WILLIAM W. BELKNAP, the new Secretary of War, was tendered a dinner by his friends in Keokuk, Iowa, on Saturday evening, Oct. 16, and responded to the toast in his honor as follows:

MY FRIENDS AND FELLOW-TOWNSMEN: I can command no words to express fully my gratitude for this undeserved greeting. Memory brings before me so many of the recollections of the past, that time would fail me did I try to tell of all the thoughts of our other days together which crowd upon me. The commencement of the war, the first formation of this company, the parting words as one and another and another dropped from our ranks to enter the service of the country; we remember all those scenes, and offer our tribute on the honored graves of our gallant WORTHINGTON and of the others of our company who will meet with us on earth no more forever. It would be affectation in me to say that I am careless as to this gathering. At a time like this, when an uncalicited and unexpected honor has been conferred upon me by the President, it is especially gratifying for me to receive the best wishes of those with whom I have lived for years, by whom I am known as well. Conscious as I that the proper performance of the duties of the position filled so nobly by RAWLINS, (God bless his memory,) and the long line of illustrious men before him, will tax the energies and efforts of myself, the humblest man of all, but I can only give to the place the entire labors of my mind and my strength, reliant, under God's blessing, upon the generous patriotism of the American people. A man's neighbors, those with whom he has been in constant companionship, are his closest critics, and if the public conduct of the office commands hereafter the approbation and sustains the esteem and regard so generously evidenced here to-night, I will be content. From my heart I thank you, and wish for each of you, always, the best blessings of heaven.

The Late Colonel E. W. Stone—A Tribute from Virginia.

From the Richmond Whig, Oct. 22.

Among the pleasant gentlemen composing the staff of General STONEMAN while commanding here, there was no one of finer heart than Colonel E. W. STONE. It will therefore be sad news to the friends and acquaintances he attracted to him here, (and how much sadder to those nearer and dearer to him elsewhere!) when they learn that he has been massacred by the Indians in the Far West, whither he was ordered after leaving Richmond. We had known him as a pleasant and accommodating gentleman at headquarters before he was appointed by General STONEMAN Recorder of the Military Board for the selection of civil officers for Virginia, under what is known as MONROE'S concurrent resolution. But it was not until then, when we were brought in daily and intimate association with him, that we ascertained what noble, manly and generous impulses controlled him in all he did. He did the work assigned him with the fidelity of a true soldier, but it grieved him often, we know, as much as it did us, faithful and trustworthy officers removed, as it did them to surrender positions upon which they and theirs were entirely dependent for support. Through his instrumentality the harsh rigors of the resolution were abated in every case they could be, and he seemed, in his desire to help Virginia in her hour of need, to forget that he was a native of Massachusetts, or that he ever drew hostile sword against her people. It gives one a better opinion of human nature to meet men who, like Colonel STONE, can rise superior to the prejudices of section and party, and be not only just, but liberal and generous, toward those who were once reckoned their enemies. May the sod rest lightly on his grave.

The Death of Mr. E. H. Uniac, the Temperance Lecturer.

From the Boston Traveller, Oct. 22.

It is known to the friends of Mr. UNIAC that some months ago he yielded to temptation, and for a few days was under the influence of liquor. After that he became sober again, but has had a fearful struggle with his returned appetite, for the enemy in whose power he was formerly held for years. He has recently been under medical treatment, and, unknown to his physician, has been using opiates. Last night, while in a state of desperation, he left the house of Mrs. J. FLETCHER, at No. 5 Asylum-street, where he had been boarding, and returned in a short time intoxicated, and having whisky in his possession. He went to bed and at two o'clock was breathing very heavily. Dr. THAYER was called and his stomach was emptied, and restoratives and nauseates were given, but without effect and he died at 4 o'clock this morning. Mr. UNIAC was born in Ireland, of parents who moved among the better classes. His father was a Colonel in the service of the Queen. Mr. UNIAC left home at the age of 15 years, and on his arrival in this country he stopped in New-York seven months and then went to Troy, where he studied law, and resided there three or four years.

During the Fremont campaign he stumped the State in favor of the "Pathfinder's" election, doing effective service. By his own efforts he also succeeded in assessing $70,000 or $80,000, but following in the wrong path he took to the cup that inebriates. He married an estimable lady in New-York City, and two promising children were the fruit of the union.

When the war broke out Mr. UNIAC enlisted in the Sixty-ninth New-York Regiment, and did gallant service, he served three years, and was also employed by the Christian Commission to lecture. At Philadelphia he made the principal speech of the evening, on one occasion, and the sum of $40,000 was raised as the result of that effort. After the surrender of LEE to GRANT, Mr. UNIAC came to Boston. His career in this section of the country is well known. His father, mother, brothers and sisters died before him.

The Cotton Crop on the Red River.

From the New-Orleans Picayune, Oct. 20.

A number of our friends who have recently visited Upper Red River give us the most glowing account of the condition of the crops in that section. They tell us of wide fields of cotton that gleam like snow in the sunshine or glorious Autumn days, and of the merry songs of the harvesters, which are heard all the live-long day. Everybody seems cheerful and contented—as well they may be under the somewhat circumstances. The

The Scenery Here Is A Woman Terribly Burned.

From the Troy Times, Oct. 22.

About 11:30 o'clock last evening, a lamp in the hands of MOUNA CAMPBELL, a married daughter of ADAM HERWIG, who resides with her father, exploded, scattering the burning contents over her clothes. The garments worn by the unfortunate woman were soon a mass of flame, and losing all presence of mind she ran screaming into the drinking room connected with the establishment. A number of persons were in the room when she entered it, and the unlooked-for appearance of a woman in flames alarmed them to such an extent that they had but presence of mind enough to prevent her from running into the street. The mother of the sufferer, hearing her agonizing screams, rushed in thoughtlessly, caught hold of the burning clothes, and by attempting to extinguish the flames burned her hands severely. While this was going on, the poor creature was uttering the most heartrending cries, and the inmates, who were in a distracted condition, having not even enough presence of mind to make any attempts to quench the flames, the room was filled with a sickening odor of burning flesh. At last some one led Mrs. CAMPBELL to a hydrant in the alley which separated the Herwig place from the other houses on the north, and there attempted by drenching her with water to extinguish the flames. But the effort was worse than useless, for during the time which was consumed in the attempt the flames gained headway, and her terrible cries and supplications were renewed with a greater force than before. These cries had the effect of calling out the neighbors, and one of these, a woman, procured a blanket, and assisted by others, Mrs. CAMPBELL, who was now but little more than a living mass of flame, was wrapped in it and the fire put out. Then one of the most sickening and revolting sights that was ever witnessed was presented. Every part of the body of the poor woman had been terribly burned except the face. On her back, breast and legs, pieces of flesh fell off, while from other parts of her body the flesh hung down, and on being touched it came off in pieces of crisp. Her finger nails were burned off and nothing but the roots remain. A physician was called and he immediately administered a soothing draught and dressed the wounds. This morning Dr. GRADENDORFF was called and he examined the burns. The doctor thinks that the sufferer is in a very dangerous condition, though by judicious treatment she may recover.

Murder in the Schoolroom—An Incredible Story.

From the St. Louis Republican, Oct. 21.

Last week Mr. EDWARD ATKINS came to St. Louis from Chicago to take a position in the Republican newsroom, expecting his family to follow in a few weeks. Scarcely had he arrived, when he received a dispatch stating that his little boy, 7 years of age, was very ill. While making preparations to return to Chicago, another message conveyed the sad and startling news that a younger child was not expected to live. Mr. ATKINS reached Chicago on the morning of the 16th, and found his youngest child dead from congestion of the lungs. In regard to the condition of the other, the following extract from a hasty note, written by Mr. ATKINS, tells a tale of atrocity enough to freeze the blood:

"WILLIE is very low, and we have but little hope of his recovery. He started to school well and strong. During school hours he violated one of the rules by playing with some of the boys, when the teacher (a woman) caught him by the hair and dragged him across the room, pounded him with a ruler on the head, neck and back, and then threw him against a steam pipe, fracturing his skull! His right side is paralyzed from head to foot. The second day he had eight paroxysms in one hour. This morning he is a little easier."

The Chicago Times gives the name of the teacher as ADELAIDE HERRICKS, "represented to be a person about 19 years of age and of a very violent and ungoverned temper." The Times, after giving an account of the manner of punishment, says,

"After school the child went home and reported the treatment he had undergone. He complained of pain in the head; but it was not supposed to be anything serious until, some time in the night, brain fever set in, and the child became raving crazy. In the insanity of fever, the little one continually cried out: 'Don't strike me! Oh, don't, don't strike me!'"

General Buckner's Property.

In the editorial correspondence of the Macon (Ga.) Messenger from Louisville we find the following allusion to General BUCKNER:

General S. B. BUCKNER, too, is here. His property in Kentucky has been restored to him, and he intends to make Louisville his residence. But he has not recovered his Chicago estates which are of immense value; but it is the opinion of leading lawyers that he will recover them whenever the cause can be brought before the Courts. When he came South he conveyed the property which really belonged to his wife to her brother to hold for her. The brother subsequently married, entered the Union and army was killed at Gettysburg. His widow died a year or two after, and it was alleged, and it was claimed that the child was the heir of all his property. Shortly after the child died, and the mother became his heir; and not long after that the mother died, and her father now claims to be heir of all his daughter's property, an1 consequently of all General BUCKNER's property, derived as I have detailed. Had the child lived there would not have been any trouble, because he would not have hesitated a moment to recover the property.

Valuable Present to Rutgers College—Bequests.

From the Newark Advertiser, Oct. 23.

A valuable collection of specimens of marbles and other minerals from Italy has been presented to the College by Rev. A. M. K. VAN NESS. Rev. Dr. CARL MEYER has entered upon his duties as Professor of Modern Languages with the happiest auguries of success. He is already quite popular among the students. The Freshman Class is the largest for several years past, numbering 42. The total number of students in the College is 141. The Peter Hertzog has been repaired and rejuvenated and looks like a new building. It is announced that the late Dow D. WILLIAMSON left $10,000 to the Theological Seminary of New-Brunswick. He also made the Boards of Foreign and Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church his residuary legatees, and it is thought they will realize about $10,000 each.

Educational Work of the National Theological Institute and University.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will you allow me to call the attention of your readers to the benevolent work which I have in charge in Washington and vicinity, designed for the proper education of freedmen preachers and teachers and other men of position and influence among the colored people of the South? This work originated, in connection with my efforts in Washington, before the close of the war. The institution which represents and controls it was the first of the kind started in this country. Our charter, obtained from Congress, gives us the privileges of a "University." The terms of admission are the same as those which are "usual in universities in the United States." In 1867 an attempt was inadvertently made to remove the corporation to Boston, while the funds were removed to that city. As the result, I was left with the largest school for the education of freedmen preachers and teachers in the country on my hands, and with no provided means of support, either for myself or my schools.

During the past year, in all the schools of the corporation I have had under my own personal instruction, aided by my assistants, 160 pupils. The work is exceedingly promising for the year to come, never more so. During the whole or some portions of the twelve or fifteen months preceding the 1st of October, 1867, I had in operation in Washington and immediate vicinity, forty-one missionary schools, instructed by eighty-three teachers, and extending the benefits of instruction to 1,100 colored people, nearly all of them adults, beside Sabath schools and other educational agencies. (See General CHARLES H. HOWARD's report.)

It is exceedingly distasteful to me to be compelled to make this personal appeal to the public. But the work is on our hands, and we must have the means of support. We desire no more. I am authorized by the Executive Committee to receive contributions. They may be sent either to myself, or to GEORGE F. MCLELLAN, Esq., Treasurer, Washington, D. C., and on their reception they will be promptly and most thankfully acknowledged. E. TURNEY.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Oct. 23, 1869.

[The writer of the above has given us ample proof of the trustworthiness of his statements, and we cheerfully admit the justice of his appeal. —ED. TIMES.]

LOCAL POLITICS.

The New-York Bar and the Bench.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

What you say against the Bar of this City in reference to the Judiciary, is well founded, as I believe. Why the Bar has failed to uphold pure Judges and put down bad ones, is not so obvious. But I will say that this is explainable upon these grounds: First—The Bar endeavored to sustain Judge BOSWORTH in the Superior Court against a questionable candidate who, by chicanery and demagogism, displaced one of our purest and ablest Judges. That individual is up again for reelection, and the Bar dare not oppose him.

The Bar has no concert of action, and the leading lawyers foresee that it is useless to oppose the Rings that have driven WOODRUFF, BOSWORTH and other eminent Judges from the Bench of this City. It is now remarked among lawyers that the Supreme and the Superior Courts have ceased to be tribunals where you are certain to have the laws administered, even faithfully, and we have no hope of a pure and elevated Bench so long as Judges are made by factions of politicians such as control this great City.

The Bar is also divided as to these questionable Judges now on the Bench, and who are accused of administering the law to favor their friends in many cases. It need not be said that certain lawyers are deeply interested in the decisions of these Judges in the way of large allowances and costs. Again, the great injunction cases always come before some of these Judges, who do not fear responsibility, and care little for their own good names. Surely lawyers know when and before whom these suits will succeed.

Then Tammany makes our Judges, and not the New-York Bar, and the changes in the Bench during the last ten years are lamentable. Politicians, not lawyers, are frequently made Judges, and not always honest men at that. An eminent jurist recently said that "he would not wish to sit as a Judge on the Bench in this City, for the reason of this condition of the Bench." Another eminent lawyer refused to try causes before one of these Judges, because he said he knew no law. Certainly, when the first lawyers of the Bar have such opinions of some of our Judges, it becomes the Bar to bestir itself and sustain Judge CLERKE as against the effort of dishonest Rings to displace him. Judge BRADY, who stands so high with the Bar, ought not to be thus used to lessen the incorruptible Judges now in the Supreme Court. The Common Pleas alone of the courts of record has preserved its high integrity in this City, and it is owing to selected lawyers and its Judges. Had some of the Judges in the Supreme or Superior Court had more judicial firmness they might have saved the reputation of the Bench in this City, and retained some honor to themselves seeking above venial Judges.

Such charges would not be so generally made against certain Judges, not the longest on the Bench, had they not called down denunciation upon the Bench by their questionable conduct. I make no charges against any Judge myself, but refer to the facts as they exist in reference to the degradation of our City Judiciary and to the constant exclamations that echo from the Press against the Bench, or some members of it.

Now the Bar will not and cannot save even our upright Judges, for the very good reason that it will not act in a body to sustain them and reform abuse. Leading lawyers will not hazard their position and the reputation of their clients before certain Judges for this purpose, and they know there is really no hope of keeping the Bench learned and honest in this City, where politicians have absolute sway.

A DEMOCRATIC JURIST.

Citizens' Democratic Association—Eleventh Assembly District.

This Association, composed of a large number of the most substantial citizens of the district, have put in nomination Captain WM. H. MCINTIRE as the Anti-Tammany candidate for the Assembly. In a circular issued to the voters of the district they say: "With many others we, who are not members of any political organization, are desirous of using our right of suffrage on the day of election, but unwilling to be made the tools of any the so-called Tammany Ring have placed in nomination."

THE TURF.

The Jerome Park Postponed Races To-Morrow—The Grand Steeple Chase, and the Horses Entered for It—The Other Races To-Morrow.

The heavy rain of Saturday last caused disappointment to thousands who had anticipated with eagerness the enjoyment of witnessing the grand steeple chase announced to come off at Jerome Park on that day, the last one of the season of 1869. The American Jockey Club have been unfortunate in the weather during this Fall Meeting, and we think they will see the policy of fixing their future Autumn gatherings at an earlier period than they have hitherto selected. The public visit the races for enjoyment, for which warm, bright weather is absolutely essential, and it is folly to expect them to patronize the racing when the air is chilly, strongly suggestive of the rapidly-approaching Winter.

The compulsory postponement of the steeple chase until to-morrow will increase the interest attached to the race, and if the day is fine the attendance will doubtless be the largest of the Meeting. The distance to be run is two miles and a half, with twenty-two jumps, and the entries made to the Secretary are as follows: Sigmig, 150 pounds; Lobelia, 140 pounds; Bohemian, 144 pounds; Eminence, 140 pounds; Gayo, 138 pounds; Oysterman, Jr., 136 pounds; and Mitchell, 136 pounds. The latter, from the fine form he has displayed as a hurdler, is the favorite, Bohemian ranking next in estimation.

In the sixth race, of one mile and three-quarters the acceptances are Metairie, 108 pounds; Coltrill, 90 pounds; Tasmania, 85 pounds; Sarah B., 96 pounds; Albuera, 99 pounds; Jubal 99 pounds, and Niagara, 90 pounds. Coltrill is the favorite, at $75 against $100 for the field.

The entries for the Selling Sweepstakes, nine in number, are Steely, 96 pounds; E. B. Connolly, 104 pounds; Bonnie Doon, 96 pounds; Tycoon, 90 pounds; Spotted Fawn, 96 pounds; Rapture, 82 pounds; Ouida, 77 pounds; Dr. WELDON's entry, 96 pounds and 96 pounds. In the mile-heat race, Lancaster, 118 pounds; R. B. Connolly, 114 pounds; Simple Simon, 105 pounds; Coltrill, 95 pounds; Lizzie Rogers, 105 pounds, and Sanford, 105 pounds. Lancaster has the call in this race, Coltrill and Lizzie Rogers ranking next in favor.

Our Colored Workingmen—Movement for Their Relief.

In the superabundant attention which has been given to the subject of the political and social rights of the colored people, we have been in danger of losing sight of their rights as free laborers. This is not for want of discussion on the "labor question." We have the question of cheap labor and dear labor, native labor and foreign labor, Irish labor, German labor and Chinese labor, which have forced themselves into notice, but the question of giving a fair chance among our own workingmen to the patient and long-suffering race which has so long furnished our hewers of wood and drawers of water, has had no hold on the public attention. A movement has recently been set on foot for a National Labor Convention of colored men, to be held at Washington, in December, and on Thursday evening next delegates are to be chosen to represent the colored men of this City in that Convention. In view of these facts it may be well to consider the actual disadvantages under which these people are laboring in this and other Northern cities.

The only occupation of which they have a comparative monopoly is that of whitewashing, while they are allowed to compete with Irishmen, Germans and Frenchmen as waiters, coachmen, barbers and menial servants, but are by no means permitted to have an equal chance even in those occupations. Their wages are from twenty-five to thirty per cent. lower for the same work than those of white men. A colored waiter, for instance, in a hotel or restaurant, receives from $10 to $20 A month, while Frenchmen or Irishmen receive from $15 to $40 a month in establishments of a similar grade. The average cash wages with stocks—$10 or $20 per month being a great price to pay a colored cook, while Americans or Frenchmen frequently receive $75 or $100, and that, too, without any reference to their comparative merits.

No negroes have ever been admitted into our mechanical associations or unions, although many have made application. A great many colored men have been trained in the South as mechanics, and make excellent workmen, some of them displaying unusual skill and dexterity, and nearly all being careful and conscientious; but they can get no employment in the same building towns with white men, and if they get any jobs on their own account it is only at interior prices for hard-or labor. On the other hand they are charged more for the rent of houses and rooms of the same quality, and the consequence is they are driven to live huddled together in localities which are not considered desirable in other cities. The places where they reside are on the west side, in Washington, Sullivan, Laurens, Houston and Broome streets and vicinity, and at intervals along the North River, between sixteenth and Fifty-eighth streets; and on the east side, on Eleventh, Pitt, Cherry, Clinton and adjacent streets. Those obliged to live with from three to five families in the same house, each occupying two or three rooms. A very intelligent colored clergyman says that he knows of no African family which occupies a house by itself, and can recall no instance of a family occupying more than three rooms. These are they forced to live crowded together in cheap localities and to live in the humblest way, not because they are vicious or lazy, but because forsooth they are black.

Crimes and Casualties.

At a late hour on Saturday night SAMUEL B. BRICK, a resident of Stapleton, Staten Island, jumped on board a Third-avenue car, and he found his entrance to the interior impeded by THOMAS BRADY and two unknown men. The three jostled MR. BRICK in a suspicious manner, and he soon found that his gold watch, valued at $100, had been abstracted from his vest pocket. An alarm was given, and responded to by Officer HARRIS, of the Fifteenth Precinct, who succeeded in arresting BRADY. When the prisoner was arraigned before Justice LEDWITH yesterday morning, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, an affidavit was drawn up, but the complainant suddenly changed his mind and refused to sign it, alleging that his watch had been returned to him. The Magistrate declined to permit the felony to be thus compounded, so remanded the prisoner for further action.

On Saturday afternoon, while a gang of laborers were at work in repairing the track at the down-town terminus of the Ninth-avenue Railroad, corner of Fulton-street and Broadway, one of the workmen, named WM. GALLAGHER, was accidentally run over by a light wagon driven by JAMES WILLIAMS, a liquor dealer at No. 40 Bowery. The horse became frightened at the clang of a crowbar suddenly dropped on the pavement, and before his owner could prevent sprang over GALLAGHER, who sustained several dangerous wounds on the face and scalp. WILLIAMS was seemingly much distressed at the occurrence, and as soon as he could stop his horse, hired a carriage and had the injured man removed to the Duane-street Hospital. The foreman of the gang, JOHN CONROY, of No. 512 West Twenty-ninth-street, caused WILLIAMS to be arrested by Officer BRYANS, of the Broadway Squad, who arraigned him before Justice HOGAN on a charge of reckless driving. The Magistrate released the accused, as he was satisfied, despite the voluble testimony of the vengeful foreman, that the occurrence was an accidental one. Yesterday the condition of GALLAGHER was reported to be a very critical one, and Dr. LAIGHT, the House Surgeon, states that unless favorable symptoms ensue, the case may result fatally. The case will come up before Justice DOWLING to-day.

NEWTON F. WHITNEY, of No. 4 West Twenty-second-street, caused the arrest of THOMAS MACKEY yesterday, on a charge of stealing a meerschaum pipe, an opera glass and a field glass, all valued at $110, which disappeared from the complainant's room on the 23d inst. As the domestic in the house testified that the prisoner was the only person who had access to the room, Justice LEDWITH held him for trial.

Steam Brakes on Railroad Cars.

The attention of railroad men is called to the interesting exhibition of the Loughridge Patent Steam Brake on the Erie Railway to-morrow. The train starts promptly from the Jersey City Depot at 1:15 P. M. with the managers and judges of the American Institute, and railroad men generally on board. The connecting ferry boats leave New-York from the foot of Chambers and Twenty-third streets at 1 o'clock.

The Fenian Brotherhood.

A private meeting of the officers and delegates of the Fenian Brotherhood, District of Manhattan, was held yesterday at their headquarters in West Fourth-street. It was understood that renewed efforts were to be made to increase the force of the Brotherhood in the district, and to place the organization on a more efficient footing both with regard to armament and discipline. A bold movement in some direction is talked of.

Another Sneak Robbery.

Some time during Friday last a tin box, which was supposed by the purloiners to contain bonds and money to a large amount, but which in reality only inclosed a lot of papers of no value to any one but the owners, was stolen by sneak thieves from the counting room of COHENS, LAZARUS & Co., second floor of No. 253 Pearl-street. After discovering the worthlessness of their booty, the thieves threw the box, with all its contents, into the yard, corner of Chambers and Chatham streets, where it was discovered, and being delivered to Captain JOURDAN, of the Sixth Precinct, was returned by him to the owners.

The talk on the Stock Exchange of a contest for the control of the Pacific Mail Company at the November election, has brought forward some of the old stockholders to the earnest support of Mr. ALLEN MCLANE, the present head of the concern, and his colleagues. Their policy, it is insisted, is the best that could be safely pursued under the competition with the Railways for the California trade, and it is not questioned that Mr. MCLANE is a thoroughly honest and devoted officer, and especially capable, by training and experience, of directing the China branch of the business of the Company, now become of first importance to their profit and prosperity.

The November Coupons on the Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the Port Huron and Lake Michigan Railroad will be paid in Gold at the office of Messrs. S. W. HOPKINS & Co., No. 71 Broadway.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

Notwithstanding the rumored suppression of Fenian demonstrations in England, an immense amnesty meeting was held in Hyde Park, London, yesterday. Fifty thousand people, it is estimated, were present. Several inflammatory speeches were made, and an immediate release of the prisoners demanded. The assemblage dispersed in an orderly manner. The troops were under arms and every precaution taken by the Police should a disturbance occur. The recent letter of Mr. GLADSTONE to the Limerick Association on the amnesty question, excites, it is said, considerable dissension. A protest has been entered by the London Association.

Lord DERBY died on Saturday, in the 71st year of his age.

No military review, it is stated, will take place in Paris to-morrow, the 26th inst. Some of the papers assert that the Government is making enormous preparations to prevent any public disturbance. The Orleanists are reported to be working, and it is thought ROUHER may be restored to the Cabinet. NAPOLEON is expected to issue a manifesto to-day.

Father HYACINTHE has been dispossessed of all his charges, not having returned to his convent as directed by his superiors.

A Madrid telegram again announces that Spain is now tranquil. In Granada, the Bishop of Almeria and a number of Protestants have been arrested. ALBAIDA has also been arrested, on suspicion of being connected with the insurrection, and taken to Valencia for trial. The Cabinet is divided on the King question.

In the Cortes on Saturday General PRIM is reported to have said that if decisions hostile to the Spanish Constitution should be adopted by the Ecumenical Council they would be treated by the Government as null and void.

The fêtes at the opening of the Suez Canal begin Nov. 15. The vessels of the fleet are to arrive at Ismailia on the 17th, leave there the 18th, go through the canal on the 19th, and on the 20th the festivities will conclude.

CUBA.

The action of the United States authorities in regard to the Cuba, at Wilmington, N. C., causes, it is said, great satisfaction at Havana. The Spanish troops recently arrived in Cuba are to leave immediately for the seat of war. Considerable sickness is reported on the eastern end of the Island.

A letter has been received at Washington from Nassau, N.P., in which the writer states that the Cuban privateer Lilian, under the changed name of the Cespedes and flying the Cuban colors, had been seized as a pirate near that port by a British ship of war. The report is not yet confirmed.

GENERAL.

A Haytian telegram under date of Oct. 9 by the way of Havana states that SALNAVE'S war steamers, which sailed recently from Port-au-Prince for Cape Haytien, met the rebel steamers Quaker City and Florida, and a sharp fight ensued in which both sides claim to have been successful. The siege of Jacmel had been begun under General CHEVALIER, SALNAVE'S Secretary of War.

General MONAGAS left Caracas, Venezuela, on the 23 inst., with 4,000 men, four steamers and several sailing vessels to operate against General PULGAR at Maracaibo.

A Havana dispatch reports the arrival of refugees from Venezuela and St. Domingo at Curacoa, and that no further earthquake shocks had been experienced on the island to the 6th inst.

Hon. GEORGE A. COE, Ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Michigan, died at Coldwater, in that State, on the 21st inst., of apoplexy, aged 57 years. He was born in Rush, Monroe County, N. Y., admitted to the Bar in Rochester in 1836, and removed to Michigan the following year.

A letter from General SHERMAN asserts that when the capital is moved it will go to some point on the Mississippi several hundred miles above St. Louis. As a citizen of St. Louis, he opposes its location there on the ground that the people would do anything to make improvements and that it would be detrimental to his commercial interests.

Mr. C. E. POLLEMUS, of San Francisco, was shot by a drunken man in that city on Saturday, and a dangerous wound inflicted.

Captain H. T. DEXTER, of the steamer Phenicia, which exploded a boiler at Louisville, Ky., not long since, surrendered himself on Friday, in that city, to the United States Marshal, and gave bonds in the sum of $8,000 to answer the charges in an indictment found against him for carelessness and neglect of duty, which, it is said, caused the disaster.

General McMAHON, late Minister to Paraguay, arrived at Baltimore, Md., on Friday, on the steamer Berlin.

On Thursday night at Nashville, Tenn., a drunken man accosted Ex-President JOHNSON, at the Maxwell House, in a threatening manner, declaring that he should never be Senator. He was taken away, and, it is reported, had a dangerous knife in his hand during the interview.

The jury in the BROOKS assassination case in Philadelphia, Penn., brought in a verdict of guilty, yesterday morning, against MORROW and DOUGHERTY. NEIL McLAUGHLIN has been held to bail in the sum of $50,000 to answer the same charge on which they were convicted.

LAWRENCE CLANCY, a painter at Peru, Ill., was arrested on Friday on suspicion of having murdered his wife, and placed in prison to await the action of a Coroner's jury. Mrs. CLANCY was found dead in the house on Wednesday night with a wound in her head, caused, as her husband stated, by falling against the stove in a fit.

Thirteen Japanese arrived at San Francisco last week on the steamer America, and are to join a colony in Eldorado County, Cal. Others are expected soon.

Mr. G. D. NORRIS, a prominent citizen and business man of Milwaukee, Wis., was killed in a singular manner on the 19th inst. During a social gathering at his residence, having occasion to go into the cellar, he fell over a cat at the head of the stairs, and losing his balance, was precipitated to the bottom, breaking his neck.

JOSEPH P. WOOD, a shipcarpenter at Rondout, under the influence of rum and jealousy, killed his wife, on Saturday, with an ax and afterward cut his throat with a razor.

The returns in the Judicial election in California indicate the success of the Democratic ticket by comparatively large majorities.

Ticket No. 83,451 drew the Coliseum, in Boston, at the lottery in that city on Saturday. The owner is JOHN L. MEGUIRE, a carpenter and builder, of the "Hub."

The skeleton of CHARLES WARD, of Sutton, Mass., who has been missing for two months, was found in a field in that town yesterday. The cause of his death is unknown.

Nov. 18 is also to be Thanksgiving Day in Kentucky.

Father HYACINTHE went to the French Catholic Church, in Twenty-third-street, yesterday morning. He afterward visited Plymouth Church, and spent the afternoon with HENRY WARD BEECHER.

An extensive fire occurred last night in the Dodd Express stables, in West Twenty-eighth-street, when a loss of $12,000 was occasioned. Messrs. The New-York Association for the Advancement of Science and Art has addressed a communication to the Board of Education, urging the importance of the physical and hygienic education of the pupils of our public schools.

The Germans in the Canvass.

This is, we believe, the first State election for many years, in which the Germans are represented by a Republican candidate of their own selection, and in which the German vote is expected to turn the scale. Apart from the increased chance of the success of the Republican ticket through this German assistance, we feel even a greater interest in it from the prospect it holds out of an important change in our City politics and City Government. The Germans, it is well known, have never held, either in this City or in the State, anything like the political influence they should justly claim. The Republican Party has never had the proportionate share of their votes which was its due. It is safe to say that when the Germans land here, unless too ignorant to understand anything of our politics, they are, from their previous political opinions and habits, naturally members of the Republican Party. The "Demokrat" and Liberal of Germany is there identified with the great body of young, progressive and liberty-loving minds; and the same is true of the "Republicans" here. Like him they have opposed every form of caste and oppression, and have struggled for freedom and equality. The same golden hopes of the disenthralment of the masses, and of the elevation of humanity, have been before both; both have aimed at manhood suffrage; and in latter years often it has happened that the garments of both have been stained with blood in the struggles for the rights of the ignorant and the oppressed. The distinctive principles of the Republican Party now, in this State, are such as harmonize with those of intelligent Germans. The Fifteenth Amendment is only a constitutional expression of "Liberty and Equality;" "payment of the bonds in gold" means national honor and German-like honesty; an inconvertible currency based on paper means, as every German knows, what primarily "sweating of coin" and Austrian paper money do, "the robbery of labor" and the cheating of the poor; the objection to to legislative grants to sectarian schools is one that every German will approve. Even the new Constitution in many of its features, especially where it guards the Judiciary, and makes it more independent, and attempts to check bribery, is such as our Teutonic fellow-citizens will surely favor.

The German belongs rightly to what may be called here the Forwärtts or Progress party. All the advanced ideas of the age are with the Republicans—the enthusiasm and love of liberty, the hatred of oppression and the true sympathy with the masses, national honor and sympathy with struggling nationalities. With our opponents there is no principle but repudiation, and no object but office.

The Germans claim to number in this City some 200,000 population. They must cast some 30,000 votes. The bulk of these have always been given for the low aims and reactionary objects of the Democracy. The causes of this are the ignorance of many of the new comers, who believe that the old word "Demokrat"—baptized in so much blood and suffering in the Fatherland—means here what it does there. It is only after some years that the laboring classes discover that here it only covers greed for office and political corruption, and does not represent a single political principle. Another reason is that the Germans do not sufficiently stand by one another, and follow their best men. There is a great deal of petty jealousy among them of their own leaders, while these leaders are usually of the Republican Party. They are too much led by small Irish or American Democratic politicians.

Again our own leaders are too much inclined to use the Germans in an election, and then to drop them. After the battle is fought, and perhaps the victory won, the German privates who did the fighting are mainly forgotten. There has been no organization of the Germans within the Republican Party, as the Democrats have amalgamated the Irish. This will be all changed now. Henceforth in New-York City, the Germans will constitute the reserve of the liberal army. They will be its most important corps. They will help to win the victories, and thereafter will take their part in our public offices.

The only obstacle to a general rising of both Democrats and Republicans among our German-American fellow-citizens in favor of our ticket is the fear lest the party is a prohibitory party. Nothing could be further from the truth. The Republican Party are in no way committed to prohibitory laws. They have no desire to interfere in the German habits of rational indulgence or amusement. On the question of riotous drinking and Sunday orgies we have no doubt that a compromise could be framed in legislation which would meet the views of both Germans and Americans.

With a strong German vote on the Republican side in this City, it would be possible ultimately to break up the present system of iniquitous "Rings," and deliver our City Government from the control of that corrupt Democracy whose jobs have made universal suffrage, as it is in New-York, "a byword and hissing" to all countries.

With Americans and German-Americans united, the Irish Democracy and their utterly corrupt American leaders could at length be met on a fair field; and New-York might finally be redeemed.

This result would be a prize of victory, greater even than the success of our present ticket, and therefore we urge more earnestly than ever before, the thorough organization of the Germans in the present canvass.

The Candidates.

The list of candidates put in nomination by the Republicans and Democrats throughout the State—as published in Saturday's TIMES—has enabled our readers to compare the relative character and standing of the representatives of the two great parties who claim their support at the coming election. An examination of this list develops the significant fact that, while the Republican Party has thrown overboard, with only two exceptions, all the Senators and Assemblymen who were implicated in the corrupt jobs of the last Legislature, the Democracy have repudiated, with but one exception, the very few men they had in that body who refused to do the bidding of Tammany Hall. Of the only two Democrats in the Assembly who voted against the Hodges Tax Levy, one—TILDEN, of Columbia County—has been rejected, and the other—PEARSALL, of Queens—is receiving the support of the Republicans, who decline to run a candidate against him.

Referring to the list of candidates in this City, we find the same kind of political dish that has been served up for years past, and that will continue to be served up so long as the better class of our citizens refuse to take any active interest in politics. With very few exceptions, neither party presents candidates of a high order; the Republicans because they fear there is small chance of electing them when nominated, and the Democrats because they do not want first-class men, or any men who will not submit to be passive tools of the Ring by whom the party is controlled. For judicial positions, with two or three notable exceptions, Tammany gives us third or fourth rate lawyers; and for legislative positions, pot-house politicians, shoulder hitters and strikers. The remarkable feature in the list of Tammany candidates this year is the large number of renominations, indicating that the old Democratic principle of "rotation in office" does not obtain with the Ring who now engineer the party. All the present judicial and county officers, with the exception of Judge CLERKE, and of those who have not been transferred to other and fatter berths, have been renominated; the entire Senatorial delegation is the same as last year; and of the nineteen Democratic members of the last Assembly from this City, Tammany has renominated thirteen. Most of those not renominated are reserved for other positions, either at the November or December elections, and the men who take their places belong to the same class of obscure ward politicians, whose only claim to office is their subserviency to the Tammany Ring.

Another fact worthy of note in connection with the Tammany nominees for the Legislature is that a large majority of them already hold offices of one kind or another under our City or County Government. Two of them—Senator CREAMER and Representative HITCHMAN, obtained lucrative positions through the legislation of last Winter; Mr. CREAMER having been appointed one of the new Tax Commissioners at a salary of $10,000 a year, and Mr. HITCHMAN Clerk of the new Board of Education at a salary of $5,000 a year. Neither of these gentlemen has signified his intention to resign his present position for a seat in the next Legislature. One of the best things in the platform of the workingmen, adopted at their recent meeting in Cooper Institute, was a resolution to support no man for office who already holds an office unless he resign the latter. If this rule be applied to the Tammany candidates for the Legislature, not more than ten out of the twenty-seven Senators and Assemblymen will receive the support of the workingmen of this City.

The Death of Lord Derby.

Lord DERBY has passed away almost simultaneously with the principles which he had endeavored to perpetuate in the Government of his country. He lived long enough to see the system which he had spent nearly half a century in defending finally rejected by the people. The man who has given up his days to the strife and heat of political conflict can endure no disappointment so keen as that which is brought to him by the knowledge that his work is discredited, and that the causes against which he thirsted to prevail have obtained the supremacy. This was Lord DERBY'S lot. The world passed him by, and called him stubborn, unteachable, and foolish. It was too late to deceive him with these brilliant visions of a "conservative reaction" which Mr. DISRAELI sometimes conjured up to soothe the anxious fears of his followers. Lord DERBY was not the man to misunderstand the lesson of the last elections in England. There could not possibly be a plainer issue than that which was submitted to the people. They were asked whether they would have a Government based upon Liberal or Conservative ideas, and they pronounced by an overwhelming majority in favor of the former. Lord DERBY became a political anomaly. That he felt the blow bitterly no one can doubt. His bodily sufferings during the last few weeks may have been the least part of the sorrows which lay in wait for him as the shadows closed in, and which went side by side with him to the grave.

There are those who condemned Lord DERBY as a "rigid Tory," but impartial observers will not so pronounce upon his character. He helped to pass the first Reform bill in 1832, and it was with his sanction that the last measure of the kind, conferring all but universal suffrage upon the people, was carried by his party. When he took office in 1866 he defined his aim to be "to pursue the path of safe and steady progress, strengthening rather than subverting the institutions of the country, and maintaining a just balance between the various parts of the constitutional system—a monarchy limited, an aristocracy tempered, a House of Commons not altogether democratic." This was Lord DERBY'S ideal, and it was not his fault if he failed to render it attractive to a generation which had not been reared in his school of thought. The forces of that effacing power which for want of a better word we call "progress," were beyond his control. He has left nothing which can be called a Conservative Party, in the old sense of that distinction. His former followers are scattered under several banners, and it may be questioned whether they will ever rally under any one. Lord CARNARVON, Lord SALISBURY and Mr. DISRAELI each claim the allegiance of those who are not yet afraid to avow themselves Conservatives, and it is possible that a very limited section may be willing to recognize Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE or Lord CAIRNS as their chiefs. But Mr. DISRAELI is still, what he ever was, indispensable to the country party. It is inconceivable that they should attempt to carry on their warfare without the man whose genius has twice led them to victory and power, and who, although the best hated man in England, towers head and shoulders above all his rivals. Lord DERBY expressly designated Mr. DISRAELI as his successor, and the "man of letters" who made himself Prime Minister against all the odds of fortune will know how to prevent a reversal of the decree.

There is one statesman to whom the death of Lord DERBY is a great misfortune, in his public as well as his private life. We refer to Lord STANLEY, who in succeeding to his father's title and honors must necessarily be transferred from the House of Commons to the House of Lords—from the Chamber where the work of the nation is done to that in which it is merely gossiped over. Lord STANLEY has won a place in the House of Commons which is now irrecoverably lost. His father's friends may mark him out as the future Conservative leader, but his mind is essentially Liberal in its cast, and he is too sagacious a man to dig for himself that pit which doctrinaires call "a third party." He will be heard with respect, but the honors of rank which fools covet will be intolerable to him. He could not if he would stand in his father's place. Moreover, his fidelity to Mr. DISRAELI has never been shaken. It is scarcely necessary to try to anticipate the verdict of posterity on Lord STANLEY'S father. His death withdraws from English political life a figure which once occupied a large space, but which from a variety of circumstances had shrunk into such small dimensions that it will scarcely be missed. Such is the inevitable fate of political men when the tide of public opinion casts them on the shore, and they are left to watch the great ocean of life receding ever further and further from them.

Andrew Johnson and Repudiation.

The organs of Democracy take the failure of ANDREW JOHNSON to get back to Washington as a defeat of their party. They announce the result with much "regret." They wanted JOHNSON in the Senate to plague his impeachers, to bully the Administration and to preach repudiation. The World received the defeat of PENDLETON in Ohio with more complacency, affecting to consider that young aspirant to the Presidency the victim of his own greenback theory, which the Eighteen-fourth Democracy of New-York could never be brought to indorse, although "up, down, sideways" was forced to stand upon a greenback platform. Why this difference between PENDLETON and JOHNSON? The World is deeply mortified that the open and shameless repudiator of the national faith is refused a seat in the United States Senate by the "Conservative" Legislature of Tennessee. But it rejoices—or rather affects satisfaction—that the pestilent theory of PENDLETON has received its quietus in the overthrow of "Gentleman GEORGE" himself!

We suspect that our contemporary, in this last case, rejoices at heart for another reason. There is believed to be one aspirant less, since the Ohio election, for the Democratic nomination of 1872. It was PENDLETON'S popularity, not his theory, that the New-York politicians feared most, and it is the supposed downfall of that popularity that they are now rejoicing over with exceeding gladness. In JOHNSON'S case they simply give expression to the disappointment felt that the Republican Party will have one annoyance less and the national honor one reviler less in the United States Senate. They would use JOHNSON for work which they would avoid as derogatory to themselves. They have not the remotest fear, however vaulting may be his own ambition, that JOHNSON could force himself upon the Democracy for higher promotion than that of a common scold or scavenger of the party, as occasion required, in the United States Senate. If he had been elected the chances are that they would have denied him the honors of ordinary leadership. He was wanted simply to berate the Administration and the party which, from misjudged confidence, once honored him with high office; and secondly, he could be of use to threaten the integrity and contemn the sacred obligations of the public debt until the whole people would be familiarized with the stigma of repudiation. This, we repeat, was their only object, but it was an important one nevertheless,—so important that the World makes haste to predict (we will not say to hope for) the early removal of BROWNLOW by death, so that JOHNSON may yet come forward in good season to play the part set down for him in the bills of 1872. It was this same World, we remember, that invoked Heaven to spare the life of ABRAHAM LINCOLN when JOHNSON made the unseemly exhibition of himself before a crowded Senate hall in March, 1865. Small as our admiration is for the present Senator from Tennessee, we might repeat the invocation to spare his life, if we believed for a moment that JOHNSON could succeed to the place of BROWNLOW in the event of death; not that the Republican Party have anything to fear from the reappearance of JOHNSON at Washington, but that the State of Tennessee may be saved the reproach of his election and the Senate the shame of his presence.

But JOHNSON will never come to the Senate. He is effectually done for. He made his last real fight on Friday. For the rest, his political life, in the words of Mr. Mantalini, must be "one demned struggle." And if our contemporary were sincere in its abhorrence of repudiation, it would find comfort, if not satisfaction, in the belief that JOHNSON'S defeat was in its causes the same as PENDLETON'S. The Ex-President fell by the avowed sin of bad faith to the public credit. When both Houses of the Tennessee Legislature resolved the other day that the State faith should be preserved at any cost, and her bondholders paid to the last dollar, JOHNSON'S mission to the United States Senate was utterly out of the question. The World, it was quite certain, could not be made to believe that Tennessee meant to preserve her honor by sending JOHNSON to Washington to impeach and malign the honor of the nation.

The Coal Duty and Mr. Morrell's Apology for it.

Mr. D. J. MORRELL, M. C., perhaps the largest iron manufacturer in Pennsylvania, has published a letter in opposition to repeal of the duty on bituminous coal. His arguments are disingenuous and easily disposed of. He assumes that the agitators for repeal seek to remove the protection accorded to anthracite, and in that he is right. But when he argues upon the basis that the protection complained of is the duty of forty cents imposed upon imported anthracite, he mistakes the fact and confuses the issue. No one knows better than he that the anthracite of his friends is protected by the $1 25 in gold per ton levied upon imported bituminous coal. The advocates of repeal point to the sudden rise in the wholesale price of anthracite coal as an instance of the effects of protection becoming monopoly. How can that be, asks the innocent Congressman, seeing that the forty cent duty has existed for five years and never made trouble before? Which is a question involving a double misstatement, as will be understood when it is remembered that the duty on bituminous, and not on anthracite, is complained of, and that the price of the latter is not now, nor ever was, affected by the forty cent duty in the slightest degree.

This duty of forty cents a ton was imposed in 1861, by what must have been a mistake, natural enough in framing a tariff schedule of two thousand items. There was no reason why foreign anthracite should be taxed, for there was none to tax. The only supply known to the commercial world, out of the United States, is in Wales and Ireland, and there is very little even there. None of that little was ever sent across the Atlantic, except a very small quantity to Nassau and Halifax for the use of blockade runners during the war. The duty was a mere absurdity, therefore, but it suits Mr. MORRELL to use it for purposes of argument.

The duty that really affects the price of anthracite is that upon bituminous coal—$1 25 a ton in gold, or about $1 75 in currency. The whole Atlantic coast of the United States is destitute of coal to a distance of a hundred miles from navigable water, excepting only the neighborhood of Richmond. All New-England, New-York and New-Jersey are without that mineral fuel which underlies half of Pennsylvania, all of West Virginia and a large portion of the Western States. The Eastern States, thus without coal, are, at the same time, the oldest settled and the most densely populated, and are consequently the most bare of wood for fuel. They naturally seek free access to the abundant natural supply within reach of their shores, and that is imported bituminous coal.

It is said, however, that the area of Nova Scotia coal mining is small, and the supply therefore can be but small in proportion to the needs of this country. That may be true, but it is not all the truth. The free importation of coal from Nova Scotia was never fairly inaugurated. When the Reciprocity Treaty was agreed to, the mining interest was all in the hands of one company, by which no effort was made for its development; its managers preferred the slow comfort of monopoly to the labor of active business. Afterward the monopoly was broken up, and several new enterprises were set on foot. Had the Reciprocity Treaty remained in force, the annual export to this country would by this time have reached a million tons.

Mr. MORRELL further, and this time truly, says that there is an unlimited supply of bituminous coal in the United States. What does Mr. MORRELL mean? There is an unlimited supply of bituminous coal, but where is it? Not in the Atlantic States, but in Pennsylvania and other States south and west of her. And Mr. MORRELL has the hardihood to assert the justice of Pennsylvania demands for protection—that her less favored sisters shall pay her an increased price for what they can easily obtain elsewhere if "protection" were removed. But the duty has "steadied the market," forsooth, and prevented the creation of "reservoirs of surplus foreign stock." At all events Mr. MORRELL'S friends have not steadied the market, but have run it up to fabulous rates. The anthracite quotations are ridiculously unsteady. As for the duty on foreign bituminous coal not being a tax on consumers, as he asserts, we know of one case in which a consumer has this year paid $6,000 in gold, or $7,000 in currency, for this very duty.

Says Mr. MORRELL, "the duty is but the equivalent for the transportation, and duty-free coal would not penetrate more than a hundred miles from the seaboard." Both these propositions are true. The cost of anthracite coal in any locality remote from the mines is chiefly made up of the expense of transportation. At the pit the coal has but a small value, but this value constantly increases with the distance of its markets. Mr. MORRELL claims, in this connection, that the duty has "extended the area of domestic production," which simply means that the price of Nova Scotia coal is so enhanced by the duty, that American coal can be carried without exhausting the whole price, though it does nearly all, in transportation to those markets which would, without the duty, be supplied with Nova Scotia coal. In other words, the money of the consumer in those markets must be spent in transportation which is utterly useless to him. The class legislation which has resulted in this is what Mr. MORRELL seeks to perpetuate. The effort does him little credit, either as a statesman or philanthropist.

Retrenchment has not been applied to the navy, say the slanderers of General GRANT. They allege that under JOHNSON the current naval expenses were largely reduced, while under GRANT economy was "at once set aside." The best answer to this statement is the fact that the expenditures of the Navy Department for the first six months of the present Administration have been one million eight hundred and forty-five thousand dollars less than during the corresponding period last year.

The action of the Administration with regard to General BUTTERFIELD is just and judicious. The President is not indifferent to the accusations preferred against that officer, and yet not willing to accept as conclusive the statements of men who have proved themselves unworthy of belief. He has therefore instituted an inquiry under the direction of the Solicitor of the Treasury, whose investigation will be as exhaustive as, from the nature of the case, it should be, and at the same time free from the suspicion which attaches to everything in which the chief manipulators of the Gold Ring are concerned. The public interests require the removal of General BUTTERFIELD if his connection with recent speculations be established; and he, on the other hand, is entitled to whatever benefit is derivable from any explanation or rebutting testimony which he may afford.

We all know that a search after justice in New-York is beset with difficulties. A man has to grope his way about in very nasty corners, and after all he finds that he has been pursuing a shadow. But, although a Judge is generally assumed to be a marketable commodity here, the suitors in his Court do not, as a rule, attempt to interfere with his personal freedom. They buy their man, and there is an end of the matter. In West Virginia, a different method is followed. Colonel JOEL McPHERSON was recently in a Court in that State, when he took it into his head to denounce the Grand Jury. The Judge fined him $25 for contempt of Court. The Colonel immediately went round to the Judge's seat and commenced to "lick" him, but as Justice carries pistols instead of a sword, in those parts, the aggrieved functionary drew his revolver and was about to use it. Some one interfered, and in a few minutes this was the position of affairs: The "Judge received several scratches in the face, and his head was forced through the window." How can the mind preserve its proper judicial balance under such circumstances? Perhaps it might prove a short way of dealing with office-seekers to offer them judgeships in West Virginia. The warlike Colonel will know how to deal with the successful candidates.

Personal independence in politics is eminently proper, but when it divides Republican councils and materially assists to give one MICHAEL NORTON the opportunity to misrepresent a respectable constituency in the State Senate, our admiration for the generally desirable quality is apt to wane. And this is precisely what has happened in the Fifth Senatorial District, where the Republicans have wasted precious time in quarreling over candidates, and now within a week of the election still present a divided front to the enemy. We did have an excellent chance of carrying the district, which is not yet utterly gone, and we hope our friends will diligently use the brief remaining time in combatting Tammany instead of making war upon the integrity of the Republican Party. By united hearty work they may yet avoid the disgrace of such a representative as Tammany has selected for them.

Earthquakes are becoming regular items of daily, or, at least, weekly news. There is always some account of an earthquake going the round of the newspapers (from which one would suppose these occurrences were increasing in the world, though very likely it is only the increased means of spreading the news of them that makes them appear more numerous than formerly. On the 24 of October the volcanic hills of the Rhine gave evidence that the old fires are not yet extinguished there, and the people of Coblentz, Bonn, and other towns, ran out into the streets in consternation. Then there was the earthquake of Mendocino County, in California; and on Saturday we heard of the shock that disturbed Massachusetts and other New-England States. An earthquake in New-York is not beyond the pale of possibility. When Hartford quakes, Manhattan may look out. If the shock comes, it will be a grand sensation, and may perhaps suggest a stirring melodrama for some of our theatres these dull times.

A San Francisco paper has found out that the Pacific Railroad is not an unmixed good. It has been the means of introducing sharper competition into almost every department of trade, and local interests have thereby been injured. Some manufactures in San Francisco have already been compelled to discharge half their hands. The goods they produced can be brought from the Eastern States and sold "at a lower rate than will afford the Californian manufacturer a living profit." If the old rate of wages is to be maintained there, the employers cannot go on, and consequently the workmen will be thrown upon their own resources. Our contemporary therefore bids its readers to expect a reduction in the rate of wages for all classes of workmen. But it might have added that this evil will be of a temporary character, and that the railroad cannot fail in the end to increase the prosperity of the community. It will bring trade to San Francisco as well as carry it away, only there has not been time enough yet for any such adjustment of business affairs. Cheaper labor is at least always accessible at San Francisco, without calling heavily upon the Chinese.

We are glad to learn that "AN OLD Subscriber" has never been subjected to the annoyances which we described in an article on the "Despots of Daily Life." His milkman, for instance, will not only sell two dollars' worth of tickets, but is "a gentleman in his conduct and appearance." This latter circumstance doubtless imparts a sweeter flavor to the milk, and perhaps even adds a little to its nutritive qualities. But one gentlemanly milkman does not make a paradise. He, unhappily, cannot supply every house in town. The general system is as we have described it, and the venders of condensed milk especially force upon their customers any number of tickets they please. A well-known vender recently made five dollars' worth the smallest quantity he would sell, and sent round a special ordinance to that effect to his customers. These tickets had to be paid for in advance. The housekeeper is thus completely in the hands of the dealer. Our correspondent has had a very fortunate experience, due, in some degree, no doubt, to his own good management. But similar prudence and carefulness will not always command success.

It is quite evident that the day is near at hand when the principles which have long governed the Episcopal Church in this country will be adopted in England. The voluntary system will obtain supremacy, and the laity will be allowed an equal voice with the clergy in deciding questions of church discipline and management. Recently a "Congress" was held of churchmen at Liverpool, and the coming reforms were frankly alluded to by several speakers. When the Irish Establishment fell, the days of the English Church, so far as regards its connection with the State, were numbered. The Ritualists are all anxious for the separation, because they believe it would leave them free to carry out their ideas to the fullest extent. But even under the voluntary system the authority of an ecclesiastical superior must be respected. Some of the English clergy are silently preparing themselves for the voluntary system by maintaining their churches on the proceeds of pew rents. Mr. GLADSTONE may not make another move this year, but when once the Irish land question is settled he will be forced into it. Revolutions such as he inaugurated cannot be stopped half way.

We ought not to refuse to hear both sides, even on such a subject as that of the treatment of ladies in street cars and stages. From the tone of some letters we have received, it appears clear that ladies are not the only persons who feel themselves ill used. It is quite possible, we are assured, for the man to be the victim instead of the "unprotected female." "Are we to have no protection?" inquires one writer. "Do not women enter stages and cars sometimes for the express purpose of forming an acquaintance with strangers?" Incidents of that kind have doubtless happened, and the insults which respectable women receive often originate in the shameless behavior of the depraved members of their sex. But it is a safe rule to act toward a woman upon the supposition that she is honest and respectable. Some men take directly the opposite course. No one can prevent dissolute females from entering a stage. It is impossible to place an official at the door to demand a certificate of moral character. But men are not often deceived in these matters, although it may suit them to pretend to be. The depraved woman soon betrays her character. Besides, even in the worst case, a man can easily protect himself, while the class we pleaded for are obliged to submit quietly to indignities which they cannot effectually resent and are unable to punish.

The progress of the Japanese seems to be more cosmopolite than that of China, though the latter has begun well with an Ambassador to the outsiders, no longer called Fan-quei, or "foreign devils." The Parliament of Japan intends to make an Imperial revolution like that brought about by the Kings of Europe in the Middle Ages, and with especial notoriety by LOUIS XI. of France—that of transforming the nobleses from a territorial to a titular order. The Daimios, who have been Princes with feudal followings, will soon be deprived of their old privileges and local autonomies, and settled under the central Government of the Mikado—a change which will, of course, put an end to their grand sword-and-buckler work, and simplify matters a good deal for all concerned. The Daimios were the chief opponents of an agreement with foreigners.

It is satisfactory to know that our recent remarks upon the subject of dark streets seem to have had the desired effect. At any rate the lamps now blaze until daylight in parts of the City where before the streets were left to darkness for a full hour before the light of day appeared. We fear, however, that this reform is merely temporary, and therefore urge the Common Council to promptly apply the only real remedy by substituting electrical mechanism for the primitive and unreliable lamplighters. A proposition to this effect has been already reported favorably by a committee, and we see no reason why the new method should not soon be in full operation.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

CUBA.

The Steamer Lillian as the Privateer Cespedes—Her Capture by an English Cruiser at Nassau, N. P.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—A letter has just been received here by a member of one of the Legations, from Nassau, N. P., stating that on the 14th inst. the steamer Lillian, which escaped from Cedar Keys some weeks ago as a Cuban privateer arrived of that port, but remained some miles out beyond marine jurisdiction, and sent in a small boat with a request to have coal sent out. Outhearing of this an English war vessel was sent out and found that the steamer was the Lillian; that she was flying the Cuban flag, claiming to be a privateer, and that her name had been changed to the Cespedes. She was thereupon seized and taken into Nassau, notwithstanding the fact that she claimed to be on the high seas, thus showing that she was regarded by the English authorities as a pirate. This letter, though giving all these details, is not confirmed as yet by any advices received by our Government.

THE WEST INDIES.

Advices from Hayti, Jamaica, Porto Rico and Curacoa—Reported Naval Engagement Near Cape Haytien.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Oct. 9.—SALNAVE's war steamers sailed recently with provisions for Cape Haytien, which is besieged by the rebels. While on the way they met the rebel steamers Quaker City and Florida. A sharp fight ensued, the details of which have not yet been received. Both sides claim the victory. The reports are so contradictory that it is impossible to state the result of the conflict.

General CHEVALIER, SALNAVE's Secretary of War, had commenced the siege of Jacmel. The rebels were confident of their ability to hold the town.

KINGSTON, Saturday, Oct. 9, via Havana.—The Government demands security for costs in the action brought by the owners of the schooner La Hase for damages on account of her seizure.

CHINA.

The Situation—Mr. Browne's Reply to Shanghae Merchants—The Chinese and Mr. Burlingame.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—ROBERT HART, Inspector-General of the Imperial Maritime Customs at Pekin, writes that J. ROSS BROWNE's addresses to the British and American merchants at Shanghae, (leaving aside what he said about Mr. BURLINGAME,) are reasonable and truthful matters of fact, and to the point. He says Mr. BROWNE's reply was a fair résumé of history and a just exposition of the situation, and also says there is nothing in it to object to; but he thinks it does not go far enough in suggesting what should be the duty of the foreigners in the future. If nothing more than moral pressure is used, he says, the Chinese will soon find it out, and will only chafe and irritate. While he disapproves of coercion, he admits the treaties ought to be enforced, though there is great difficulty in determining how far even that would be available and justifiable.

Mr. BURLINGAME's policy does not seem to be working satisfactorily. Mr. HART says the Foreign Office is getting more filibeni every day, and he has not ceased to warn Mr. BURLINGAME how far the Chinese are from making good his words.

The British missionaries at Pekin have protested against Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK's recommendations for a restriction of missionary privileges.

American missionaries cordially indorsed the course pursued by Mr. BROWNE, who, they say, was an earnest advocate of their cause.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Programme for the Opening—The Fetes to Begin on Nov. 16.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 23.—The ceremonies on the occasion of the successful completion of the Suez Canal will be interesting. The following is the programme: The fêtes will begin at Port Said, on the 16th of November. The vessels forming the fleet will proceed to Ismailia on the next day, and remain there till the 18th, and will go through the Suez on the 19th, where the proceedings will be ended on the following day.

THE PACIFIC COAST.

Return of Troops Sent to Arizona—No Rations Supplied Them—Japanese Settlers—Steam to Australia.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 24.—The steamer Continental, hence yesterday for the Colorado River with troops for Arizona, has returned, the Commissary Department having neglected to provide rations for the soldiers.

Thirteen Japanese arrived here by the steamship America to join a colony in Eldorado County. Many more are expected by the next steamer. One of the most experienced agriculturists of Japan also arrived, bringing with him 4,000 chestnut trees and a bushel of chestnut seed, for sale and distribution.

The newspapers are again urging the establishment of an Australian steamship line. The sudden departure overland for New-York, of the agent of the Pacific Mail Company of the city, it is surmised, is connected with the project.

FIRES.

Fire and Loss of Life in Albany—A Woolen Mill at West Philadelphia Destroyed.

ALBANY, Oct. 23.—A fire broke out in the crockery warehouse of Messrs. VAN HEUSEN, CHARLES & CO., on James-street, in this city, last night. It was a bad fire to control, yet the firemen managed to confine the flames to the burning building. The loss is estimated at $80,000. There was an insurance of $30,000 on the building and $20,000 on stock. Several firemen were injured, but none seriously. It burned three hours before the firemen got it under control. While this fire was raging, and the whole Department engaged thereon, another fire broke out in the house No. 75 Beaver-street, occupied by HARMY BUCHANAN as a saloon. The place had not yet closed. Several persons were in the upper part of the building; some escaped, while the exit of others was shut off. One man named JOHN FRUYN, son of the late SAMUEL C. FRUYN, leaped from the front window and was killed. It is reported that others perished in the flames. Several persons were badly injured. The loss is heavy, but the insurance is uncertained.

Among the property destroyed at WEED, PARSONS & CO's was the edition of the Assembly Journal of the last session. It will be reset in their new building.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 23.—A woolen mill belonging to JAMES GREENWALD, in West Philadelphia, was burned last night. The loss is $60,000.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

Murder and Attempted Suicide in Rondout—A Drunken Assassin in San Francisco.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Oct. 24.—JOSEPH P. WOOD, a ship carpenter, residing in this place, last night killed his wife with an ax. Four deep cuts were found in her face, four in her head and three in her throat. After killing her he cut his throat with a razor. Jealousy and rum are said to have been the causes of the crimes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 23.—A drunken man to-day attempted to assassinate Mr. C. B. POLHEMUS, of the firm of AZROF & CO., by shooting him through the body. The wound, it is thought, will not prove fatal. The assassin was arrested.

Trial of the Brooks Assassins in Philadelphia—An Alibi—The Verdict.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—The prosecution in the Brooks case has closed, reserving the right to call the witness who was spirited away and cannot be found. The defence will try to prove an alibi. The Court refused to admit the affidavit of NEIL MCLAUGHLIN, driver of the carriage, to Mayor FOX, on which the indictments were found against the prisoners.

This afternoon, for the defence, a number of persons, including Alderman MCMULLIN, swore positively that from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., on the day that Mr. BROOKS was shot, MORROW and DOUGHERTY were drinking, playing cards, &c., in a tavern in the southern part of this city, over two miles from the scene of the shooting, which occurred at about 12 o'clock.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Shortly before 10 o'clock this morning the jury in the Brooks case rendered a verdict of guilty against MORROW and DOUGHERTY. NEIL MCLAUGHLIN has been held in $20,000 to answer the same charge. MORROW and DOUGHERTY were kept under a strong guard all night for fear of being rescued, and after daylight recontveyed to prison.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

The Shocks in New-Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 22.—At 3:45 o'clock this morning a severe shock of earthquake was felt here, preceded by a rumbling noise and vibrations. It lasted about twenty seconds. Houses shook violently, everybody awakened, and many rushed from their houses in alarm, but no material damage was done. In other parts of New-Brunswick—Fredericton, Woodstock, Miramichi and St. Andrews—the shocks appear to have been more severe, throwing down chimneys and cracking walls of houses. Similar shocks were felt in Halifax, Annapolis and Kentville, N. S.

Agriculture in Maryland—Fair of the State Society.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 24.—The annual Fair of the Maryland State Agricultural Society, suspended for several years, will be again opened on Tuesday next, and will be reinaugurated by a grand parade of the Maryland National Guard, consisting of nine regiments of infantry, several of cavalry and two batteries of artillery, with Governor BOWIE and staff. A committee will leave here to-morrow for Washington to invite President GRANT and his Cabinet to visit the Fair. The grounds adjoining the city are in fine order, and from the large number of entries made in every department, the exhibition will be very fine. There will be trotting each day.

Railroad Consolidation in Tennessee and Mississippi.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—A movement is on foot to consolidate the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad with the Mississippi Central Railroad, and it is said it is designed to unite the Mississippi road, now built, with the Tennessee and Mississippi Central roads, and place the line under the control of Colonel SAMUEL TATE, President of the Southern Railroad Association.

Trotting.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—The two mile race yesterday between Venture and Harvest Queen for $4,000, was won by Venture in 3:12¼ and 3:12. He made the first mile in 2:28. The owner of Venture offers to match him against any horse in the United States in a ten-mile race.

Miscellaneous.

NEW-ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—Proceedings have been instituted in the United States District Court against W. M. SHALLWOOD, late Postmaster at New-Orleans, and his sureties, for the alleged defalcation of over $19,000, the proceeds from the sale of internal revenue stamps, of which his account was short. Quarantine from all ports ceases to exist here from to-day. A citizens' meeting is being held here to-night, the object being to endeavor to secure a better and more honorable municipal Government.

DETROIT, Oct. 24.—The propeller Comet, bound up, and the propeller Hunter, bound down the river, collided about 2 o'clock this morning eight miles below here, and both vessels sunk. No lives were lost.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Resolutions were passed on Change this forenoon asking the Presidents of the Erie and Central Railroads to immediately give facilities for shipping grain from this port East, it being impossible to procure cars for wheat and corn to fill orders for points in the interior.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Theatres To-night.

A change of performance will be had at Niblo's this evening. "Oliver Twist" being acted instead of "East Lynne." "Formosa" will be performed at the Bowery for the first time. At the New-York Circus two Cuban acrobats, ESPINOZA and RODRIGUES, will make their first appearance in this country. No change of performance is advertised elsewhere.

Carlotta Patti in Brooklyn.

The last concert to be given for some months in the vicinity of this City will take place at the Brooklyn Academy of Music this evening.

De Cordova's Lectures.

There is no more genial and popular contributor to the public's entertainment than Mr. R. J. DE CORDOVA, whose first lecture of a series of three is to be given at Steinway Hall this evening. More fortunate than overselves, a Philadelphia audience has had le premier of the paper illustrative of the characteristics of "The Sham Family at Home," and to be read by him to-night. It was heard in Philadelphia last week. Although recollections of past reunions left little doubt that these Mr. DE CORDOVA is now to preside over could be delightful in the extreme, we cannot but find our anticipations of this evening's pleasure heightened by the news that his earlier discussion of the subject he is to treat was listened to elsewhere with unusual satisfaction. Steinway Hall will of course be filled, and by a very intelligent and fashionable audience.

Musical Notes.

Mr. FREDERIC LOUIS RITTER purposes to give this season a course of lectures on the "History of Music," which there is good reason to believe will prove of startling value. Mr. RITTER is a compeer of high merit, a contributor entitled, and what he does he will do thoroughly. As arranged, the lectures will be as follows:

First lecture, Nov. 6—"The Invention of Harmony and Folksong from the Christian Era to the latter part of the Fourteenth Century." Second lecture, Nov. 20—"The Great Epoch of Catholic Church Music and the Madrigal; from the latter part of the Fourteenth Century to the Death of PALESTRINA in 1594." Third lecture, Dec. 4—"The Opera; from 1600 to the Death of GLUCK in 1787." Fourth lecture, Dec. 21—"The Oratorio, including the Passion, Mystery and Miracle Plays; from the Twelfth Century to the Death of SCHUMANN in 1854." Fifth lecture, Jan. 4, 1870—"Instrumental Music; from the Sixteenth Century to our own day."

CURRENT NOTES.

Thirty-five citizens of Augusta, Ga., who served in the rebel army, obtained "liberal subscriptions" for a "most magnificent banquet" to be tendered to JEFF. DAVIS when he passed through that city on his journey from Charleston to his home in Mississippi. As he went by the way of New-Orleans, the illustrious exile lost his dinner, and the thirty-five citizens aforesaid publicly announce that they were much disappointed in not seeing once more the noble but unfortunate President of the Southern Confederacy.

The Knoxville Whig declares that Tennessee will not repudiate—that the State debt has been incurred, and it must be met and will be met, no matter at what cost or sacrifice. And its correspondent at Nashville, who has mixed a good deal with the members of both Houses of the Legislature, writes that the suggestion of repudiation is odious and monstrous.

Boston, last week, got rid of its Coliseum, was shaken up by an earthquake, and received more butter than it ever received in one week before.

The Democrats of the Fourth District of Mississippi invite all opposers of Radicalism to send delegates to a convention to be held in Jackson on Friday, 29th inst., to nominate a candidate for Congress.

Some people in Maine say that just before they felt the shock of the earthquake on Friday morning they noticed a livid glare suddenly appear in the sky, although the heavens at the time were quite dark, and it was raining.

The Georgia editors, who were so very desirous that General BUTLER should not attend their State Fair, were extremely anxious that JEFF. DAVIS should come.

General CANBY refused to all the per diem to the members of the Virginia Legislature during the recent recess.

Forty papers were pledged to the Democratic ticket in Texas, but at the latest advices only three had hoisted that flag.

Judge J. W. JOHNSTON, one of the new Virginia Senators, is a Roman Catholic. The Bristol News, published near his home, says that by his election Virginia sends to the Senate Chamber the purest man that has graced its halls for half a century.

The Big Drum of the Jubilee has been deposited, "with inscribed head and smashed sides," in Faneuil Hall.

A Cincinnati religious paper is about to publish a life of JOHN SMITH, and explains that it is not that man whose life was saved by POCAHONTAS, but that other man who was a pioneer preacher, eminent above his compeers for wit and humor, as well as for his power as a preacher, and popularly known as "Raccoon" SMITH.

STATE POLITICS.

WILLIAM EDGAR LAWRENCE is the Democratic candidate for the Assembly in the Third District of Westchester County.

The Democrats of the Second District of Steuben County have nominated JOHN WOOD, of Greenwood, for member of Assembly, and JACOB H. WALCOTT, of Corning, for School Commissioner.

The Democratic candidate for member of Assembly in the First District of Otsego County is JAMES YOUNG, of Cherry Valley. LOWELL S. HENRY, of Exeter, is their nominee for School Commissioner.

The Democrats of the Second District of Rensselaer County have nominated EUGENE HYATT, of Lansingburg, for member of Assembly.

JOHN P. RANDALL, of Wethersfield, is the Democratic candidate for member of Assembly in Wyoming County.

The contest in the First Assembly District of Oswego County is being carried on with much vigor. Over one thousand Republicans of the district have indorsed the nomination of Hon. D. C. LITTLEJOHN, and he has accepted the nomination tendered him by one portion of the Convention.

ST. PIERRE JERRED, of Florence, is the Democratic candidate for member of Assembly in the Third District of Oneida County.

Hon. LYSANDER H. BROWN, of Watertown, is the Democratic candidate for Senator in the Eighteenth District, comprising Jefferson and Lewis Counties.

Colonel E. A. NASH, who has declined the nomination for Senator in the Thirty-second District in favor of ALLEN D. SCOTT, was, in fact, the regular Republican candidate, although the Convention was held after Mr. SCOTT's name was placed in nomination. In his letter Colonel NASH says:

"Numerically strong in this district, and stronger in its antecedents, the Republican Party, if true to itself, should give a large majority this Fall. Internal dissension and discord would defeat us. They are now among us. Without reviewing the cause or approving the acts of a portion of the party adverse to my nomination, I will simply state that a sacrifice seems to be necessary to secure harmonious action. Believing as I do, that the interests of the party are paramount to the interests of individuals, I shall be happy if I am instrumental in adding anything to its success and perpetuity."

At the Democratic Judicial Convention for the Fifth District, held at Rome, a letter from Judge WILLIAM J. BACON was read, declining a renomination. One paragraph from this letter will be generally interesting. Speaking of his suggested renomination he said:

"It has been proposed to me, not upon the basis of a political nomination, but one entirely irrespective of any party and upon high public grounds. I freely admit that this would be placing such a nomination on a true and most desirable platform—one which I fully approved, and, under other circumstances, I would be glad to countenance and uphold. It is, I have always thought, an unhappy feature of our present judicial system that it has led to, if not necessitated, political nominations; for if there is one evil greater than any other in our State, it is a partisan Judiciary. It is the rock on which have been shipwrecked some otherwise fair reputations. With the most solicitous endeavors on my part to avoid it, I cannot hope that I have wholly escaped this danger, but I may be allowed to believe that the tender of a nomination which has been made to me is some evidence that I have not willingly suffered the scales of justice to be swerved from their true equipoise."

Circumcision Arrested on a Charge of Smuggling.

From the Detroit Free Press, Oct. 22.

Deputy United States Marshal INGLISE, of Port Huron, with another internal revenue officer from this city, went to Chicago recently armed with a bench warrant from Judge DRUMMOND, of that city, and proceeding to Joliet, where LEVI J. NOGTE's circus had just gone into Winter quarters, arrested W. H. C. SHEPARD, GUSTAVUS SUMPARD and THE BARLOW R. BEAUMONT, proprietors thereof, on a charge of smuggling sixteen horses from Canada. The defendants were brought to Detroit and arraigned before United States Commissioner WM. D. WILKINS, where they gave bail, with three sureties, in the sum of $1,500 each, for trial on the first Tuesday in January next. The trains so seized belong to the defendants, in bringing their circus across the river from Canada, at Fort Huron, brought in that the rope is fixed into the [illegible] twin poles by a simple rod of iron [illegible] perforation whereby the horses can [illegible] their gear. The blades also are slightly [illegible] with the intent of throwing off the rope [illegible] As the growth of cotton at the present time [illegible] is quite an object before the public, we mention BALDWIN's cotton and cane screw. It is exhibited in a diminutive model. It proposes to open the drill to sow the seed and to close the soil, [illegible] of which this is to be hoped it will accomplish [illegible] soon as it has been put into a working form. DEMINGTON's corn husker, sheller and bagger is surely sublime to parse; it can be worked by steam or horse power, and will dress and bag 200 bushels per day. There are quite a number of plows on view, but none of them can boast of novelty, and former exhibitions have made us difficult to please. They are good everyday implements, but nothing more. The desks for farm offices or for commence market use might, without undue tax for luxury, appear somewhat more ornamental. They are severely plain, and to our taste rather light, too fragile and too easily upset, even though attached to the floor or wall. The weighing machines have already been favorably mentioned; they are admirably finished, and as accurate as science can make them, either as they now stand or when fitted to weigh bridges. GALVIN & DURAND exhibit their improved milking machine; it is fitted to their improved cow stall; if it were without the attendant description of the close stall into which the animal's head is thrust during the process of milking, we would approve much, but a timber cow stall is too old a fashion; it is obsolete; alone on its own merits it ought to gain public favor, as also can be said of MONROE's rotary harrow, which cleans the soil most effectually from weeds and grasses. It is also a good grain coverer; the teeth on the roller side open the soil, and those on the opposite quarter rake the surface.

Capture of a Notorious Burglar—A Long Chase.

On the night of the 17th of last August the premises of BARTON, ALEXANDER & WALLER, dealers in cutlery, at No. 66 Beekman-street, were entered by burglars, who carried off 142 dozen pocket knives, valued at $1,400. In due time, Detective TILLY, of the Central Office, was placed on the case, though he made but little progress until recently, owing to the want of a clue. About a fortnight ago Mr. WALLER, one of the despoiled firm, happened to be in Baltimore on business, and was asked if he dealt in a new kind of pistol, the merchant at the same time pulling open a drawer which did not contain pistols, but a portion of the stolen cutlery, which was immediately recognized by Mr. WALLER. Through a third party he obtained some of these knives for positive proof, and consulted with Superintendent KENNEDY on his return to this City. TILLY was then sent on to Baltimore with Mr. WALLER, when Chief of Police CROWE obtained a search warrant, and recovered forty-eight dozen of the missing knives. The proprietor stated that he had purchased the goods from another Baltimore firm, who on being visited surrendered forty-one more dozen of the knives. This merchant stated that he had purchased the lot of knives from the notorious "General" ABRAM GREENTHAL and his wife, who brought the cutlery to his store in a trunk. Acting on this information, Detectives LYMINGTON and TILLY visited No. 12 Norfolk-street, in this City, yesterday afternoon, and arrested GREENTHAL, who is now under lock and key at Police Headquarters, awaiting examination before a Magistrate. GREENTHAL has already served two terms in Sing Sing and Trenton State Prisons, and is a well-known criminal.

Ladies' Union Relief Association.

Inspector JAMESON, Captains WASHBURN, ALLAIRE and STEARNS formally offered their services to the Association as representatives of the late Union army, to assist them in their forthcoming fair. Their services were accepted, and arrangements made to render them effective. The firm of WRIGHT & CO., oyster dealers, on the west side of the City, has sent the Association an invitation to visit the oysterman of the Hudson River, assuring them that they would be glad to contribute to assist them in relieving the distress of the families of soldiers. Pianos Via Pacific Railroad.

THE WEBER PIANO THE PIONEER ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

The enterprise of San Francisco was shown yesterday in the receipt overland of two of the celebrated Weber Pianofortes, by the agent, EDWARD F. PIERCE. This is the first attempt at importing pianos by rail, but the length of time consumed in shipments around the Horn induced Mr. PIERCE to try the experiment overland, and it has proved successful. The instrument left Mr. WEBER's factory, New-York City, on the 14th of September, and arrived at Mr. PIERCE's warerooms on the 12th of October, just one month in transit, and required no repairs, not even tuning. The Weber Piano is attracting much attention, and is the favorite concert piano, being used exclusively by Mme. PAREPA-ROSA, KELLOGG, BERGHOLI, &c., in their concerts throughout the States, and it seems eminently fair that it should be selected to make the trial trip across the continent.—San Francisco Alta California, Oct. 14.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The week just closed has been by far the busiest of the season. Sales were made every day except Saturday, and on Tuesday and Wednesday two large pieces of Westchester County property were offered, more valuable than has been sold under the hammer for a long time. The total sales for the week were larger than during the entire month of September or the first three weeks of the present month. The interest did not flag for a day, and the attendance at the last sale was as good, and the bidding as spirited, as at the first. One New-Jersey sale, it is true, did not show as good a result as was anticipated; that though must be attributed to the weather; the day was cold, raw and blustery, and the only wonder is that the people ventured out at all. The sale, so far as it continued, was not a bad one, but it was discontinued quite early, for not only the crowd but the auctioneer himself was obliged to succumb to the fierce blasts of cold cross; with that single exception the sales were all of a very satisfactory character.

The coming week, though not so busy a one as that just closed, yet promises to be very interesting. Several sales are announced of desirable and well-located property near New-York, and, as the crowds seem still eager to buy, it is safe to predict for them, if the weather holds fair, as good results as have attended the preceding ones.

The sales for the week just closed were as follows:

New-York leased property	$59,800
New-York improved property	78,200
New-York unimproved property	43,800
Westchester County unimproved property	172,000
New-Jersey unimproved property	68,340
New-Jersey improved property	4,200
Staten Island improved property	3,000
Total for the week	$434,340
Total for the month of September	495,705
Total from Oct. 1 to 14	328,472
Grand total	$1,258,517

Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER open the week to-day with a sale of 250 building lots at Homestead Station, N. J., ten minutes' ride from the Pavonia Ferry, and three miles from Hoboken Ferry on the Paterson Plank road. This sale offers to clerks, mechanics and others an opportunity to secure lots at moderate prices, in a rapidly-improving neighborhood. The special train will leave the foot of Chambers-street at 10½ A. M. Maps and free passes may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 23 Nassau-street.

At Flushing, to-day, at 1 o'clock, Messrs. LAWRENCE OAKLEY and FLEURY have a sale of forty-two valuable and well located lots, situated in a good part of the town and surrounded by improvements. The sale will be peremptory and the terms easy.

Tomorrow Messrs. A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. have a grand sale at Morristown, N. J., of what is claimed to be the best improved property ever sold at auction on the line of the Morris and Essex Railroad. The property has been divided into villa plots of from one quarter of an acre to three acres each, are in a very desirable locality, command fine views of much of the loveliest portion of New-Jersey, embracing the picturesque valley in which the town is located, Fort Nonsense beyond, and in the immediate foreground the charming Pocahontas Lake. The property is in good condition, the streets are graded, and other improvements have been commenced. A fine collation will be served on the arrival of the special train, which will leave the foot of Barclay-street at 10 A. M. Illustrated maps, showing views from the property, and free passes, are now ready at the auctioneer's office, No. 6 Pine-street.

On Wednesday Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER will offer 200 building lots, beautifully situated, in one of the most desirable parts of Cresskill, N. J. At this sale a new feature will be introduced. Five of the best lots, free and clear of incumbrances, will be given away to the five largest purchasers. Cresskill is one of the beautiful and thriving towns on the Northern Railroad of New-Jersey, but seventeen miles distant from New-York, and accessible by numerous trains daily. The property to be sold is eligibly located within 400 feet of the depot, on high ground, and is surrounded by handsome improvements. Every lot is available for immediate use. The special train will leave the foot of Chambers-street at 10.30 A. M. on the morning of the sale. Maps and passes are now ready at the auctioneers' office, No. 23 Nassau-street.

On Thursday at Orange, N. J., Messrs. A. D. MELLICK, Jr. & Bro. will sell the elegant and well-known estate of A. P. PILLOT, Esq. The property comprises 146 acres, situated one mile from the North Orange Station, on the slope of the famous Orange Mountains, and in the immediate vicinity of the elegant residences of Dr MARCY, General MCCLELLAN, GEORGE HECKER, FRANCIS TOMES and other prominent New-York gentlemen. Fine views may be had from all parts of the property; the mansion is in good order, and the grounds beautifully adorned. The land will be divided into villa plots of from one to five acres. Maps and passes may be had at the auctioneer's office, No. 6 Pine-street, or of COUDERT BROTHERS, No. 49 Wall-street.

The same day, by order of E. R. KELLOGG, Executor, a sale will be made of 100 vacant lots, belonging to the estate of EDWARD KELLOGG, situated at Elizabethport, N. J. Maps, free tickets and terms of sale may be had at Mr. KELLOGG's office, No. 3 Broadway, or Second-street, Elizabethport.

During the week several pieces of improved and unimproved City property will be offered at the Exchange Salesroom, particulars of which will be found in our advertising columns.

It is not probable that country sales will continue much longer; a week or two more and the cold weather will have finished them. Those, therefore, who are interested in them, and desire to purchase country homes, will do well to attend the sales announced above, as they are among the last to be made this season. City property is already being offered in very respectable parcels at the Exchange, and it cannot be long before the old room, which during the last few months has been almost entirely quiet, will resound again with the cries of the auctioneers who are now, in the open fields against strong winds and before large audiences, strengthening their lungs and voices for the trying services they will be obliged to perform under ground, during the cold Winter.

ORDNANCE OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23, 1869.

In pursuance of the act approved Dec. 15, 1868, and by direction of the Secretary of War, the property of the United States at Harper's Ferry, West Va., and vicinity, will be sold by public auction, on TUESDAY, the 26th day of October, 1869, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. and continuing from day to day until all is sold.

The value of this property for manufacturing purposes is so well known to the public it is unnecessary to describe it herein, but a description of the same is being prepared, and will be sent to persons who may wish it, as soon as it is printed, upon their applying by letter to the undersigned.

The property will be sold in lots. The first will include the Musket Factory, embracing a strip of land running to the western boundary, on the Potomac, the armory proper, and the western portion of the river. The walls of two large buildings are standing on this ground, and the foundations of several others; and the water wheels, with gearing, and the flumes are in almost perfect order. Three of them are turbines, of the most approved kind, and the others are mostly cast iron with wooden buckets.

The second will be the site of the Rifle Factory, and water power on the Shenandoah, the buildings upon which have been destroyed, but the canal is in good order.

The third will be the Shenandoah Ferry, with a tract of 65 acres of land on the south, and a lot on the Harper's Ferry shore opposite.

The fourth will be the perpetual right to cut and remove wood from a tract of 1,500 acres mountain land across the Shenandoah.

The fifth will be the right to dig iron ore from a tract of about 1,400 acres of land known as Friend's Ore Bank, acquired by deed from Henry Lee and others.

The remainder, consisting of houses and lots in the town, will be sold lot by lot.

The Government will convey to the purchasers, after payment shall have been made in full, all its right and title to the property, which is believed to be perfect in every case.

The terms of sale, prescribed by law, are a credit of one and two years, the purchasers to give bond and security for the payment of the purchase money; and these terms must be complied with within ten days after the sale.

A map, showing the metes and bounds of the Harper's Ferry property, will be exhibited at the time of the sale.

The Government reserves the right to withdraw any or all lots offered, if the bids are not satisfactory.

A. B. DYER,
Brevet Major-General, Chief Ordnance.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS.

THE CHURCHES.

Services in This City and Brooklyn Yesterday.

FATHER HYACINTHE AT BEECHER'S.

Swedenborg and Methodism at Cooper Institute.

PROGRESSIVE CHRISTIANITY.

FATHER HYACINTHE.

His Movements Yesterday—He Attends Early Mass at the French Catholic Church in Twenty-third-Street—He Visits Plymouth Church, and has a Talk with Mr. Beecher.

Yesterday being Père HYACINTHE's first Sabbath in America, great anxiety prevailed among those interested in his movements as to how he would spend it. At an early hour in the morning visitors could have been seen lounging round the doors and vestibules of the Fifth-Avenue Hotel, watching eagerly for the appearance of the preacher-monk, whom they were prepared to follow to whatever church he might choose to attend. Our reporter was likewise on hand for the purpose of learning whether the Father was going to take any part in the religious services of the day, or not. Cards were sent up stairs to the gentleman's room with very polite inquiries as to what church he proposed visiting, but no response was received other than that his reverence was too busy to see any one. Not a word about the church was uttered. Evidently the good Father was sick and tired of the continued boring to which his rather uncomfortable notoriety subjects him, and had determined to move about as secretly as possible. At length in the most mysterious manner he got away from the hotel without being seen by the many who were eager to set eyes upon and question him. Chagrined beyond expression at having missed him, they immediately began to ply the porters with innumerable queries as to whither he had gone. Each interrogator received a different reply. According to one the Father had gone to the Carmelite Church, corner of Sixty-sixth-street and Lexington-avenue; others had it that he went to St. Vincent de Paul's, in West Twenty-fourth-street, or to St. Colombe's in West Twenty-fifth-street, while not a few felt positive that the Father had taken this opportunity to hear Mr. BEECHER, for whom, these people said, he has a great regard. The fact was that nobody knew whither he had gone nor when he would return. The truth is, that he went to early mass at the French Catholic Church on Twenty-third-street, calmly and quietly, as a good Christian should do, and took particular pains to avoid everything like ostentation and notoriety. He entered and left the Church with the crowd of servant girls and people who are obliged by their occupations to rise early in the morning and go to chapel at 7 A. M., if they want to have the opportunity to fulfill that duty at all. Unnoticed and unknown by these simple Christians, the man, whose name has been mentioned by millions with a species of religious awe, went and came to and from the church. Later in the day he went to Plymouth Church, where he was cordially received by Mr. BEECHER, "not as a curiosity, but because he had the courage to show himself to be an independent man." After service he spent several hours with Mr. DARLING and a couple of other gentlemen at Mr. BEECHER's house, in interesting converse with that gentleman. Much pleased and generally gratified with his visit, Father HYACINTHE returned to the Fifth-avenue Hotel in the evening, the latter part of which he spent peaceably keeping his room and denying himself to all visitors.

Thirty-first Anniversary of the East Baptist Church—Sermon by Rev. E. Grimnell, its First Pastor.

The Rev. Z. GRINNELL preached an earnest discourse yesterday morning in the East Baptist Church, corner Madison and Governeur streets, the occasion being the thirty-first anniversary of the founding of the church. The reverend gentleman selected his text from Daniel 11th chapter and 32d verse: "But the people that do know their God shall be strong and shall do exploits." The preacher said that the text was eminently prophetic, but its prophecies had since been fulfilled, and would still be fulfilled until the end of time. The Jews and the ancients were fond of indulging in and performing great exploits, and many contributed to the glorious history of Christianity themselves, as the Jews were the subject of much oppression and cruelty. The many strifes and feuds that occurred in those days also gave men opportunities to distinguish themselves which they would not otherwise have had, and almost incomprehensible was the pleasure and glory that a warrior felt when achieving a victory, and particularly when his eyes were closing on the earth for the last time. They were all perfectly acquainted with the historical incidents of the battle of Quebec, which resulted in the death of WOLFE. As he lay almost expiring, he heard shouts: "They fly, they fly." "Who fly?" he asked. "The French," was the answer. "Then I die happy." He then died with a smile of satisfaction and pleasure resting on his kindly features. But there was one who had achieved a greater victory, much more important in its results. Who had fought against the combined powers of hell and earth to secure advantages and happiness for the human race which should exist and yield fruit for all time. Jesus died at the hands of men who were struggling among themselves who should have the privilege of crucifying Him. He died praying that mercy might descend and the pardon might be vouchsafed unto His destroyers and persecutors. That was an exploit—a glorious and heavenly exploit—and its advantages had been experienced until the present time. But the Christian life was continually a scene of exploits in many circles and ways. They performed exploits as Christians in overcoming by the grace and help of God the world and Satan, and in guiding and controlling their life and spirit. A renowned divine had said that a man who could control his spirit was an exploit such as the world little conceived of. Then they achieved exploits as scholars. Foreigners had lived many years in foreign lands and never learnt the language perfectly; but there was a language hard to learn, but which Christians learnt with a facility utterly incomprehensible to some. That language was the language of Canaan, and it was the language spoken by the 144,000 that worshipped the Lamb forever and ever. They also achieve exploits as warriors and travelers. No emissary of Satan could assail them when clad in the right armor not with the seal of Heaven, and as travelers they were constantly walking in a new state utterly unknown to those who have not studied its lovely scenery. But the utmost circumspection was needed in order to prevent them from going out of the way. He was glad to meet some of his former flock again. He had the privilege of being their first pastor, and had also the happiness of laboring among them for four years. They first established their sanctuary in a small room in a common house, but now it had grown up to be a fine church, and the number acknowledging God as their Father had now increased. He thanked God for the success now manifested, and he knew they joined in his prayers that the same prosperity that had hitherto attended them might attend them in the future.

Catholicism and Protestantism Compared—Pere Hyacinthe and His Church—Sermon by Rev. C. H. Frothingham, D. D.

Lyric Hall, in Sixth-avenue, near Forty-first-street, now used as a Lutheran Church, was filled yesterday morning by a select congregation. Rev. C. H. FROTHINGHAM, pastor of the church, delivered a sermon, taking for his text the 24th chapter of Matthew, 6th verse. Six hundred years ago, said the preacher, Abbot JOACHIM, a devout monk of Calabria, announced a new dispensation of the Gospel corresponding to the three persons of the Trinity. The first dispensation was law; the second, doctrine; and the third, knowledge. The type of the first was Peter, builder of the Church; the type of the second was Paul, preacher of truth; and the type of the third was John the beloved disciple, the seer. The graces of the first and second were submission and humility, and of the third, liberty, life and joy. JOACHIM differed as to the meaning of the words, and some even said that JOACHIM believed all the Church taught, and intended to infuse new spirit into its teachings. But no matter what the good monk might have said, it was certain that there grew up around, and inspired by his writings, a large company of men and women styled visionaries, who announced in his name a new era, where authority was to be dispensed with, where priests were to be laid aside, and people were to see with open vision. SAVARONA and LUTHER followed; were more earnest in their denunciations against Papal tyranny and the bondage of the Church than JOACHIM was. But to-day the old dispensation of the law still abided, and the second was yet free. Rome sits proudly and serenely on her seven hills and calls authoritatively to her from all ends of the world. As a "visionary" preaching the third dispensation of love, he was satisfied that the first dispensation meant power, pomp and authority as exemplified in the Church of Rome. There everything was for the eye, nothing for the mind; imposing domes show, venerable from antiquity; everything awfully grand to command the spectator. St. Peter's Church was a magnificent temple; each little chapter connected with it had its symbol, but the service therein were read in an unknown tongue, to charge the hearers but humbly bow to Swedenborg and Methodism—Lecture by Rev. E. R. Keyes.

Rev. E. R. KEYES, late a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but now a minister of the New or Swedenborgian Church, delivered a lecture last evening in Cooper Institute, in which he gave his reasons for discarding the doctrines of Methodism and accepting the Swedenborgian system of theology. Protestantism, he said, was based on an attempt to remedy the defects of civil and ecclesiastical society. When in either of these phases of society defects are discovered, the majority are for permitting them to remain, because the system has been prosperous and its results beneficent, thus showing, they say, that it must have been by divine permission that these defects existed. The minority protest, and say success resulted despite the defects, and therefore they ought to be rooted out. The minority finally prevail, and ecclesiastical and civil society are lifted to a higher plane of purity and usefulness, a desire for which is now strongly prevalent among men. We had will honor the advent on our shores of a man who sought to establish within the fellowship of the Romish Church a higher order of Protestantism; with no less honor should he be hailed who, in the Protestant Church, seeks to establish a higher and more rational system of theology. Neither the reaction of Luthrum nor the reforms of WESLEY accomplished the proper object of establishing a higher and more harmonious order of religion, the efforts of the former being aimed against the assumptions of the Romish authorities, and those of the latter against the domestic organization of the Church. CHANNING and BUSHNELL present a true type of the fearless defenders of truth, and exponents of the defects and errors of the theology of the day. Against the theology of the Methodist Church he (the speaker) had felt constrained to protest, not that he failed to discover in that Church earnest and devoted laborers for God and humanity, but because in its system of theology were errors working injury to our holy Christianity. He here desired, unwillingly, to make a personal explanation. The Methodist Press had charged him with concealing his views on doctrinal points at the time he was transferred to the New-York Conference in May last. This assertion he would now, as he had done before, pronounce absolutely false and libelous. At no time within the past two years was he wholly in accord with the Methodist doctrines, and at no time did he attempt to conceal his views. He was charged at the Maine Conference with heresy, and on some points he refused to be questioned and on others he avowed his difference with the accepted doctrines of the Methodist Church. Not one of the Methodist papers which published these slanders would consent to publish his refutation. This might be Methodism, but whether Christian and honorable he left it to the world to judge. If he was guilty of liberty to give advice he would recommend that those who make charges against men of hitherto unblemished character in relation to the Book Concern should scrupulously examine the grounds on which such charges are made. He then went on to argue against the old theology of three persons in the one Godhead, and also the doctrine of the Vicarious Atonement, As the foundation of the doctrines of Methodism was that of man's responsibility to God, and yet in connection with that was the doctrine of imputation, or, in other words, that a man may have the sins of another imputed to him on the other hand, and on the other the virtues and sacrifices of another, just as though individual responsibility and merit might be transferred from one to another. The idea of three persons in the same Godhead is contrary to human reason. If he were to pronounce the word God, and call for the mental image thus reflected in the human mind, it would be found that the word at once associated itself with the idea of one person—one single being; and when with the lips they pronounce a Trinity, the mind logically and actually gives the lie. The idea of a communicated divinity is an absurdity. We have two divine persons, one of which is willing to do what the other is unwilling to do. The one, the very basis of whose character is infinite love, is represented as so vindictive as to demand the ignominious death of the other in order that He, God, may be reconciled to His creatures. The very principle of forgiveness which He everywhere inculcates as a duty on man, He himself is represented as being utterly devoid of. After arguing against the doctrine of the Trinity, and contending that it was utterly fallacious, and a reproach on the divine character, he said that with the fall of this doctrine of the Trinity must also fall that of a vicarious atonement, and with both, that of justification by faith alone. There was an atonement, 'tis true, but not in the sense of the old theologians, to change the character of God toward man, but to change the character of man toward God. God himself was present in the body of Christ, and in this sense the human form of Christ became the Son of God, because created by God; but the soul, the vital spirit, was the one Eternal God himself, taking upon Him the form of humanity that He might combat the powers of darkness that were leading men to destruction, and reconcile the World to Himself. Sinners, he said, were reconciled to God and forgiven the moment they forsook their sins, and no punishment is visited on man except the legitimate consequences of his own sin. Turn to the parable of the prodigal son. See him sorrowfully and repentingly return to his father's house. See that father, instead of meeting him as he did, stand at his door and say: "My son, true you are repentant and have forsaken your evil ways, I am willing to receive you, but before you can enter my house, this, thy elder brother, who has never done me an injury or been guilty of a single act of disobedience, must die." What would you think of such a father as that? In conclusion, the lecturer described the new Jerusalem named in the Revelation of John, and adopted by the new Church, as not being a material city, but the new order of doctrines adopted by the Church, to which he had given his adhesion and in which he had been solemnly baptised.

Progressive Christianity—Sermon by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher.

At Plymouth Church yesterday morning, Rev. H. W. BEECHER preached an interesting sermon on the subject of personal piety, in its various stages of progression. He compared the convert to Christianity, to an infant, and urged upon his hearers the importance of a thorough comprehension of the principles upon which true Christianity is based. If all teachers and parents were consistent children might be brought up and educated in religious matters in such a way that it would be difficult to tell the exact period of time when conversion, so called, took place. There would be a gradual growing into the Christian virtues and graces. It was true that many persons made a great display of their conversion; the time when and the place where they thought it occurred was a great incident in their lives. In some instances such people held out to the end, in others it was a mere matter of emotion, or sudden and transient feeling. True religion consisted, he said, in an earnest, constant struggle to follow in the footsteps of the great Master. Love to God and man was the first great principle. This life being a battle field, the soldiers here must fight persistently, steadily, courageously, and to the end. The speaker said he was often asked if there was any such thing in this life as Christian perfection. His answer was, no; not in any proper sense of that word, perfection. The life of a Christian was gradual, he said, and, in illustrating this part of his discourse, he likened a Christian to the life of man. The babe just born knows nothing; is as the most helpless thing in the world. It grows and gains strength by the care and aid of others. So a person who resolves by the grace of God to lead a new life, he is converted. If he has been in the habit of committing vices, he resolves he will do so no more. The whole current and tenor of his life is changed, but still he is but an infant. He may stumble, and err, and be labor all the rest of his life on the side of God and righteousness, still he will not be perfect. There is no such thing as perfection in this world. All are growing, growing, growing, either in piety and virtue—or else in wickedness.

Brooklyn (Eastern District) Christian Aid Society.

The directors of the Brooklyn (Eastern District) Christian Aid Society availed themselves of the Sabbath for their annual meeting, which was held in Bedford-avenue Reformed Church, Rev. Dr. POTTER presiding. It appeared from the statement made by the agent, Mr. BURNS, that the funds had given to the poor of Anniversary Exercises at St. Luke's Hospital.

The anniversary exercises at St. Luke's Hospital took place yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the institution. Bishop POTTER was present. After the singing of a hymn and prayer, Rev. JOHN COTTON SMITH read the annual report, from which it appears that 949 patients were treated in the hospital during the year ending on the 16th inst., of these 128 died. There are now in the hospital 123 patients. Since the completion of the new northwestern wing 300 patients can be provided for. The small number now in the institution is attributed to the improved sanitary condition of the City, and to the fact that the Superintendent of Police has given orders to convey all cases of accident to Bellevue Hospital. Thus, as the report states, many persons injured almost within sight of the hospital are carried, with the loss of valuable time, and perhaps at the expense of great bodily and mental agony, to Bellevue, when they might be taken at once to St. Luke's. The expenditures of the hospital during the year have been nearly $53,000 and the receipts about $48,000. The deficit has been made up by 100 persons who, last year, signed an agreement to divide hereafter sixty dollars that might occur between them, provided it did not exceed $100 each.

Statements were made by the Surgeon in charge, and the Superintendent, showing a most gratifying condition of the affairs and administration of the hospital. About $2,000 per year, it was stated, is saved by dispensing with the services of an apothecary and his assistant, the nurses being educated to perform those duties.

After a few remarks by Rev. Mr. SMITH, Bishop POTTER said that he had merely offered to say how great and warm an interest he felt in the institution. It had done much good, more perhaps than could ever be known. None, he believed, either patients or visitors, ever entered its doors that did not derive good therefrom. Few of us felt as we ought to do the importance of Christian charity, though the Bible inculcated it so strongly; but he was glad to hear that the wants of the institution had been so well provided for, and thus its usefulness materially increased.

"Old Hundred" was then sung, and the congregation dismissed with the Benediction.

Heavenly Recognition—Sermon by Rev. Mr. Stratton.

Rev. Mr. STRATTON preached in the Methodist Church, corner of Lexington-avenue and Fifty-second-street, last evening, before a full house, on the "Recognition of Friends in Heaven." That there would be such a recognition, he said, was to be inferred from what the Scriptures say, and from the natural feelings of the human breast. Ancient philosophers, who groped about without the light of the Gospel, confidently believed that in death they died they would meet those whom they loved in the unknown regions. SOCRATES declared that he would willingly die many times for the pleasure of seeing his friends who were to follow him. CICERO met death in the happy belief that he was going to the society of his son CATO. All races, tribes and conditions of men have always entertained the idea that death did not separate friends and families forever from each other. The Scriptures express but little on this subject. They do, however, clearly intimate that the power of memory and identification are preserved in the future state. The rich man, in the parable, recognized Lazarus and Abraham after death. The promise of the Saviour that the faithful should meet him in glory and other Bible references to the company of the redeemed, indicate a recognition of friends in Heaven. Moreover, there could be no happiness in a conscious separation from loved ones. In conclusion, the preacher urged his hearers to strive to become partakers of that blessed eternity where earthly friendships would be continued, and where families could reunite in joy and thanksgiving.

Revival Meetings at the Forsyth-Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

It was announced yesterday by the pastor, Rev. JOHN HOGHE, D. D., that prayer meetings would be held in the Forsyth-street Methodist Episcopal Church every night during the present week. The services will be conducted by Mr. "SAMMY" HALSTED and his associates of the New-York Praying Band. The meetings will take place in the main audience room of the Church, and it is expected that the attendance will be very numerous.
